POLIS THEATER

The attraction for the second week at Polis theater is the success of success, Get Rich Quick Wallingford, a comedy written by George M. Cohan and based on the wonderful interesting short stories by George Randolph Chester. Few short stories have made the same impression upon American readers as the Wallingford series. The phenomenal business ability of J. Rufus Wallingford being one of the wonders of present day fiction. Mr. Cohan has written an intensely interesting and amusing play, its success being evidenced by the fact that three continents acclaim its merit—America, Europe and Australia. It is produced by the Polis Players for the first time in stock and for the first time at the popular prices in Polis theater.

The story of the play is based upon the success which attends the efforts of Wallingford to make a fortune out of carpet tacks and the wonderful success which the company meets with in the opportunity for the plot. Its trials and tribulations, always surmounted by the clever Wallingford and his right hand man, Blackie Daw, are portrayed with a realistic touch, making a play that is entertaining, amusing and novel. It will be given an unmitigated success and will be produced under the personal direction of George E. Lusk, who has assurance that it will rival the original production. Edmond Elliot will play the manager and Miss Maud Gilbert will play the role of a sane Japer with whom Wallingford falls desperately in love. All of the other roles will be played by the company and the cast will be greatly augmented for the week. The same popular prices will prevail—10 and 20 cents in the afternoon and 10, 20 and 30 cents in the evening with 1,000 matinee seats for ladies at 10 cents. As usual, there will be no matinee on Monday, the first performance being on May 14th evening. There will be daily matinee and evening performances thereafter during the week.

Obituary

THOMAS McROBERTS

Thomas McRoberts of Spruce street died suddenly last Monday evening in his automobile when about to start out for a ride. Mr. McRoberts had just left his garage on Foster street and intended to drive around to Spruce street where he was to get his two social-law, George Little and George McKinnon and the party was to go over to Buzsard. Thomas Hooks, a nephew of Mr. McRoberts, cranked up the machine and after Mr. McRoberts had started the auto, going Mr. McRoberts climbed aboard and intended to ride around the corner to Spruce street. After the turn had been made from the Spruce street street Mr. McRoberts said to Mr. Hooks that he would "let it out a bit" and just then he fell forward on the steering wheel. Mr. McRoberts had something like a nervous fit and fell over the back of the machine and was hurled into the air. He fell about 100 feet and landed on the east side of the road. Mr. McRoberts was lifted from the machine by medical aid and was pronounced before could be secured he had expired. Medical Examiner W. B. Tucker gave permission for the removal of the body to Mr. McRoberts home on Spruce street and pronounced death due to heart failure.

Mr. McRoberts had a similar attack on Middle street last week Wednesday which he attributed to a fainting spell. His death came as a severe shock to his relatives and friends. The auto in which he was riding had been in his possession for the last three weeks and he was just beginning to master the operation of the machine in a satisfactory manner. His relatives had hoped that he would find such pleasure in autoing, but it was not to be. Mr. McRoberts was a native of Ireland and was 59 years old. He had been in South Manchester since 1887. He was a carpenter by trade and since coming to this country had built and owned a number of houses. His real estate dealings had netted him a considerable sum and at the time of his death he was paying taxes on a valuable piece of property. He was survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Little of Spruce street and Miss George McKinnon of Foster street, and by one son, Mr. Robert McRoberts, who is a clerk in the office of the city engineer. He was also survived by a wife, Mrs. George Little, and two daughters, Mrs. George Little of Spruce street and Miss George McKinnon of Foster street.

THOMAS McNEARY

Thomas McNeary of 37 West Center street died at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning from the effects of a shock which prostrated him while at his work in Cheney Brothers silk mill. He was the sturdy type of manhood that is admired everywhere and for which there is an abundance of demand in every community. He was blessed with a very kind disposition and was never in any one's way. EXPERTS REPORT

VOTING MACHINE COM-MITTEE FAVORS U. S. STANDARD

Individual Reports of Three Mechanical Experts Presented to Selection-Scrutiny, Workmanship and Practicality in U. S. Standard

The committee appointed by the board of selection to inspect the U. S. Standard voting machine, after a thorough examination of the machine which was on exhibition here last week made their report to the board of selection on Monday evening. The committee consisted of John M. Kettle, Chief Engineer of the U. S. Standard voting machine shop, W. J. Taylor of Oklahoma street who is employed in the Underwood Typewriter factory in Hartford and Charles E. Jones who is employed in the John Underwood shop in Hartford. These three mechanical experts made a thorough and painstaking study of the U. S. Standard machine and their individual reports favored the U. S. Standard machine made by the Empire Voting Machine Company of Jamestown, N. Y. The reports are given in full below.

South Manchester, Conn., May 11, 1913. To the Honorable Board of Selection, South Manchester, Conn.

Gentlemen:

Being selected as one of the mechanics to examine the two voting machines now on exhibition here, I have the honor to submit to you the following report:

After inspecting the general construction of the two machines very carefully, my opinion is that the U. S. Standard machine is superior to the Triumph. In the following features: The workmanship, the finish, both inside and outside, simplicity and construction. These are very important features as they control the conformity and accuracy of its operation. The Triumph has some very good features, such as the setting up device, one man doing the work that it requires three men to do on the U. S. Standard machine. Another good feature is being able to disengage individual voting pointers from the party lever, but these features are few in comparison with the good features of the U. S. Standard machine.

The certain of the U. S. Standard machine is superior to the Triumph in that the voter cannot vote until the curtain is entirely closed. This curtain is operated automatically by the registering lever, the work of the machine and the machine reset for the next voter before the curtain is opened. This method gives a perfectly secure vote.

The certain of the Triumph is operated by hand, the operating lever being on the end of the machine outside of the curtain, the voter is therefore obliged to open the curtain to set his vote, secrecy uncertain.

The U. S. Standard machine having the least number of parts, the voter is able to operate, and all of the voting pointers operating in the same direction, and therefore less liable to confuse the voter—was an advantage over the Triumph machine.

The face of the U. S. Standard machine being exposed to the public is a very good feature. If anyone of the voting pointers should get out of working condition it could be easily detected.

The counter of the U. S. Standard machine is superior to the Triumph machine; the reading of the same being done horizontally, they are quickly and easily read and are well protected from dust.

The U. S. Standard machine is superior to the Triumph in its construction, being a map and rivets while the Triumph is assembled with screws which are liable to jar out of place.

I can give no comparison of the Primary attraction, the U. S. Standard machine not being equipped, but in harmony with the rest of the machine.

The Triumph being the most complicated is more liable to get out of order. On the above facts I would select as my choice and recommend the U. S. Standard machine to the Town of Manchester.

Yours truly,
John M. Kettle,
Assistant Manager Cheney Brothers Machine Shop.
