it is not difficult to understand just what that means. Here was a determined war that had sent to their grayes brave men from every part of the country. That meant that in every large town and in many a village there were men who went to the front who never returned; many who did return, only to soon be borne to their graves

The country was affected by the sight, so many men were caught in the enormous bloody strife, in this Moloch's maw, that nearly all who re mained could point to the grave of one that had fallen, who was either a rela-

Heritage of Gloro

MEMORIAL DAY is an annual baptism of patriotism that makes the heart throb with pity for the tragic sacrifice of precious lives in the awful strife of 50 years ago. It was a titanic struggle, a harvest of death on blood-soaked battlefields in which grim, determined men in blue and gray contended for mastery with equal bravery and stubborn courage. North and South, they have left us a heritage of deathless sylvania, and all the generals and colonels, and captains, and-not least of glory, the example of men who knew how to lie for the cause all—the hosts, from the greatest commander to the poorest and most unletthey believed tobe right. It tested race. Cut of the gigantic conflicthe nation staggered, gasping, ex-hausted, bleedig, but still one people and unde one flag. WETERANS

Their battle flags have gathered dust, Their bugles are no longer blown, Their guns are covered deep with rust, The youthful hopes they had are flown; Neath many a mound their comrades lie, Their heads are bent, their step is slow, And e'en perchance you wonder why They fought so madly long ago; But, though the cannon has been stilled And foolish prejudice has died, His soul is small who is not thrilled To see them marching side by side.

For worldwide peace we may appeal

And scorn the belted soldier's trade, Or speak the deep contempt we feel For mimic warriors on parade, But these old men, whose heads are bowed, Are worthy still of our applause: Their valor still may make us proud, Though Time has cleared away their cause. Peace reigns, and shall through all the years, Yet, mean at heart, his blood is cold Who feels no thrill and sheds no tears

A Card to The Public

To the residents of Manchester and vicinity we beg to say that we recently purchased this property for CASH and following our usual custom we are going to offer it for sale at public auction. It is needless to say that this will afford one of the greatest opportunities to purchase centrally located building lots at auction prices that the town has seen. The property is located in direct line of the town's growth, between North and South Manchester, about three (3) minutes walk from Main street and the trolley. The mains of the Manchester Water Company's system are already within about three hundred feet of the property and we confidently look for a rapid development of this whole section in the near future. The growing factories of the Orford Soap Co., Carlyle-Johnson, Cheney Brothers, etc., are all within walking distance of this land.

Wide, well graded streets have been introduced in such a manner that every lot is desirable and ready for building of nice homes. The lots are plainly marked by white pain ted stakes and numbered so that any one can readily see the size and location of each.

Nature has been very kind to Homestead Park, for in it you find almost any kind of desirable home site. There are hundreds of shade trees, many of them upwards of fifty (50) years old.

Visit the property before the first day of the sale and be convinced that what we
