Miss Swann's party at her home last Friday evening.

Superintendent F. A. Verplank told the voters of the district that plans have been made for temporary housing of the school children.

The second section dealt with a proposed addition to the Lincoln school at the center.

A special meeting of the legal voters of the Ninth School District will be held in the Assembly Hall of the High School Building immediately following the above adjournment.

To see whether the District will vote to fix the site of a school which it has voted to build in the western part of the District.

To see whether the District will vote to approve plans and specifications of an addition to the Lincoln School Building and authorize the construction of the same.

While returning from her work last Friday evening Miss Julia Hogan of Outsize street was run down on Main street near Hartford road by an oncoming motor car.

To see whether the District will vote to take any action regarding the approval of plans and specifications for a building in the western part of the District or will authorize the construction of the same.

Have some Hartford Dairy ice cream or your Sunday Dinner. A telephone call to the Park Hill Power Shop will bring it to your door.

FOR THE SALESMAN

Some Rules and Hints Laid Down by One Who Has Made a Success.

GOOD TEMPER; COMMON SENSE

Language of Convincingness One of the Most Important Things to be Acquired—Never Claim Too Much for Goods You Are Selling.

Do not allege too much or you may prove too little. Too much is not sufficient. Zeal will often impel us beyond the boundary line of discretion.

If you cannot pull a man off his high horse on one side you may push him off on the other. It does not matter which way, so you land him—in salesmanship.

The man who commits the most faults is the one who is least aware of them.

Good temper is the best companion and common sense the greatest guide.

One excuse for paragraphs of this kind is that a salesman reads them to be more likely to observe and follow any good rule which they may embody than if he does not read them.

It is the business of the salesman to become familiar with facts and draw inferences from them and the experiences of others serve us for the purpose as much as the most exacting guides.

Tact will follow from experience. It can be taught. Much experience can be condensed into the form of rules. Every salesman should give attention to the making of rules, which are the condensation of his own, or others' experience.

"I have spent much time during the last five years in the search for strong, convincing sentences. I must be able to remember. The employer is compelled to send all employees under eighteen years of age to a continuation school.

Never treat a customer as if he were a fool. It is a mistake to be too kind. You will be caught at some point along the line of false argument. A buyer is not to be fooled at all points.

"There is a fatality that is nothing and winning. It consists in the employment of language that does not directly flatter but induces the hearer to flatter themselves."

When a customer proposes, do not answer an objection before it is made. It is always easier to answer after it is offered than to prevent it. The advantage of the closing argument, and can play a stronger card to your opponent's lead.

If you desire most effectively to impress your customer with the belief in the high quality of your goods, never claim too much for them. Talk learnedly of quality as a general proposition and leave it to the customer to infer that your goods are of the quality which you so eloquently extol.

INSTRUCT THE YOUTHS

EDUCATION OF APPRENTICES IN GERMANY IS A MODEL.

Various Methods Prevail, but All Tend to Convert Boy Into Expert Workman in His Line.

The education of apprentices in German foundries is described by Dr. Otto Brandt in a dissertation that is attracting considerable attention in this country, according to reports received at the United States bureau of education.

Various methods of instruction prevail. Frequently the apprentice is assigned to a skilled workman who instructs the boy and returns give the larger pay resulting from the efforts of both.

If the boy makes good progress that the teacher-workman is given a bonus. If he does not, the boy is paid part of the proceeds.

The boy is very small, however, from the American point of view. In large machines shops the foundry apprentices are formed into special classes for instruction in the industrial continuation school.

With some concerns all the apprentices are instructed together the first year, and specialized during the following three years. There is no uniformity with regard to subjects and arithmetic—cost of materials, freight charges, etc., drawing, six hours a week.

During the latter part of the course business law, civics and industrial history are introduced. Some of the schools have sessions in which the pupils are made to read the similar problem in this country; and they are especially impressed with the importance of the continuation school, as quoted from the Prussian minister of commerce and industry.

"The continuation school should aim at the vocational education of the young people between fourteen and eighteen years of age, to promote that education, and to train them to become valuable citizens and respected men."

PORTION OF LABOR.

Truly, the light is sweet. And it is to be desired that it should be so. And that a man should do his best. And that he should be so. And that he should be so.

Truly, one thing is sweet. Of things and things. And that a man should do his best. And that he should be so. And that he should be so.

Truly, one thing is sweet. Of things and things. And that a man should do his best. And that he should be so. And that he should be so.

MEDDLESOME OLD MAN

By DOROTHEA THOMPSON.

"They used to say, when I was a boy at home, that I grew up with-out being called for forgerly. It would speak well for my home training. However that is, I had a knack of copying to a nicety any signatures or addresses that I picked up. I used to do it for the fun of the thing, but never, even in school-boy crises when a note from home would have worked wonders with a hard-hearted teacher, did I use the gift to my own ends."

"Next to my little four-room bachelor apartment is a twin, a rear flat, and not so many months ago it was taken by two girls—gentle and well-bred, or I'm no judge of character. The older of the two I had no love for, but the younger girl, who was far for her years, but the young one I could hear her singing through the window walls of the chamber flat."

"The first time I saw her I thought to myself, 'How much she looks like that girl who was with me, and I put an end to it. One day when Mercedes had stolen out as usual, I wrote a note in French which I had written unadvisedly, and tucked it behind her mailbox. It was just a customer's card, but I ended it with the phrase that had ended Mercedes's note to him. I had an idea that it was a sort of password of theirs, and I was right."

But she had her favorite. I could hear the note well welcome in her room for one of them. I was sure, as deserving of her as ever a man was of a woman. Tall and strong and well-bred, her choice was exactly my choice, too. I used to pass them in the hall often on their way to some morning class, and she had ever bright and a word for me. And then, when they came back, many's the time I've caught the note of tenderness in her voice as she said good-night to him at the door. And he'd nod her one look at him when they were together would have told me."

In the snatches of their conversation I got as they passed through the hall—anything said in the hall was common property to all four flats—I learned several things about them. For one thing, there was real sympathy between them, understanding that was surprising, considering that they were together who had told me."

Then I gathered that she got up and found it for him. There was a voice of black silence—then in a moment of awe and wonder:

"By jove, it's! You're right!" "Let's keep it always dear," Mercedes said softly. "We can't quarrel again after that."

RECOVERED FROM JUMP HEAP

Enormous Sum in the Aggregate That Is Saved, Ascribed to "Secondary Metals."

The value of "secondary metals"—exclusive of gold, silver, platinum, iron and aluminum—recovered in the United States in 1912, reached the enormous total of $77,385,843, compared with $52,585,590 in 1911, according to J. P. Dunlop of the United States geological survey, an increase of nearly $25,000,000, or almost 50 per cent.

"Secondary metals" thus recovered from scrap metal, sweepings, skimmings, dross, etc., and are so called to distinguish them from the primary metals, which are derived from ores, and which are termed "primary metals."

RECENT INVENTIONS

Provision has been invented in Bohemia whereby beer can be brewed against a wall, out of the way, when it is not in use.

Why Two Hods?

"Good night, Bert, dear," that always came. But this time I was disappointed. Instead I heard the boy say with feigned cheerfulness:

"Good night, Miss Judson," and her answering "Good night, Mr. Carter." I didn't like that. It sounded serious beneath the banter. Then the boy said soberly:

"The more I'll come when you send for me, Mercy."

And Mercy answered with gentle stammering, "I'll never write till I hear from you, Bert," and the door closed slowly.

Next day I saw her. I thought to myself, 'How much she looks like that girl who was with me, and I put an end to it. One day when Mercedes had stolen out as usual, I wrote a note in French which I had written unadvisedly, and tucked it behind her mailbox. It was just a customer's card, but I ended it with the phrase that had ended Mercedes's note to him. I had an idea that it was a sort of password of theirs, and I was right."

UP THE SAME TREE

By JOHN PHILIP ORTH. One day a big Newfoundland dog came to the house of J. Ed. Farrer, in the town of Royalton, and sat down at the gate. He was a homeless wanderer, and in search of a home. He was as big as a calf, and it was evident that he had the appetite of a horse.

Only Effective Remedy for Present Demonstration Must Be Moral One—Statement as True Today as It Was Sixty Years Ago.

The industrial world sadly needs a reformation. Nothing less can make it what it ought to be. Nothing less can cure the many ills, industrial as well as the broadly social ones, from which it is suffering now.

By a high-headed tree we mean one whose branches come out of the main trunk four or five feet above the ground, or, as the writer heard one man say, "high enough so that you can get some close to the tree in cutting."

Peaches in one of our best peach-growing sections are headed practically at the ground, while apples are headed from 12 to 18 inches above the ground.

There were words of great wisdom then, and they are none the less true now. But is there any possibility of a reformation in the world?

The use of proper pruning is a must in the business relations which have mostly engaged our attention as well as in our social relations.

There has never been another social force as powerful as religious faith in the world's history.

Every conquest, every step forward in knowledge, is the outcome of courage, of a manly spirit.

It is a well-known fact that the most successful men in the world are those who have a high-headed tree.

A small building to be used as a sterilizer and a furnace is being erected at 105 Main street. The building will be owned by the Messrs. W. W. and Mrs. William P. Rogers, the smallest patent leather shoe store, all bed clothing and other articles used during their lives will be taken to this building and a thorough sterilization and disinfection.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss W. H. Haling of this place and Miss Margaret Fensholt of Bolton. They were married in Williams and are living at the Fenning house in Bolton.

Selectors Hobenthal and Bowers are being proposed, about 10 to 15 feet where new street lights are needed. They will have 30 new lights to put in. This number will not meet the supply and it therefore follows that the committee of the board of selectmen to use their best judgment in placing the houses where they are in need of them and where they will do the most good.

Engineer J. Frank Bowen has surveyed Main street for the curbing to be set there this fall. He is of the opinion that the fall weather will permit the present laying of concrete sidewalks on the East side of Main street from Charter Oak to Birch where permanent walks do not now exist, but are so wanted that the work will be done not later than next spring. It is certainly very much needed along the curbing being delivered now.

John Kendrick Bangs Here.

John Kendrick Bangs, the distinguished editor, author, poet and lecturer, addressed a large assemblage at High School Hall last evening, and for one hour and 45 minutes kept the audience laughing almost constantly. He spoke for the subject of his discourse, "Salubrity Has Not an Age." He spoke of the olden times, of the Middle Ages, of the Renaissance, of the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries, and of the present day. SCHOOL MEETING metal lathing and a sprinkling system. The motion was carried unanimously.

Howell Cheney suggested that the remaining sections of the call be thoroughly discussed before action was attempted and also suggested that the estimated cost of the buildings be ascertained as far as possible.

Mr. Cheney said there were two plans to be considered. The first was that the school building should be built on the west part of the town on land provided by Cheney brothers, and that the district own and maintain same as would also be the case with the addition to the Lincoln school. The growth of the town has made a school building necessary in the west end. For the east end it was proposed to erect two school buildings of sixteen rooms each to care for the primary and grammar grades. Cheney brothers would provide the land for the building in the eastern part of the town. The estimated cost of the Lincoln school would be $25,000; the primary school on the west side would cost $45,000; the land on the west side would cost $5,000; the land for the primary and grammar schools in the eastern part of the town would cost $15,000; the east side building would cost $180,000, the total cost being $260,000. This debt could be met by issuing serial bonds that would run for twenty years. With the insurance, repairs, etc. it would cost the district about $26,000 a year, the first few years of which sum the district would pay one-third and Cheney Brothers two-thirds. In straight tax, the district would pay $9,333, or two-tenths one-quarter mills per year for twenty years.

The other plan would be for the district to build the addition to the Lincoln school at a cost of $18,000, an eight-room school building on the west part of the town on land provided by Cheney Brothers at a cost of $48,000, total cost $66,000.

Over a period of twenty minutes the members of the district school board discussed the matter and the motion was carried unanimously.

the district. Cheney Brothers would erect two 16-room school buildings the plans to be called upon to pay the larger share of the cost. The district can take over the new buildings at any time by mutual agreement or by condemnation proceedings.

He favored the district acquiring the buildings slowly. The firm has no desire to force its plans upon the district. As they have maintained the buildings in the past they thought it their duty to replace the burned buildings now.

The recreation feature is an expensive and will have to be worked out. Cheney Brothers are willing to take the big risk of putting their money into the buildings but they feel confident of the success of the venture.

In answer to a question of N. B. Richards, Mr. Cheney said that the recreation building would be used by the school children during school hours and by men and women during the evening. This was done as matter of economy.

W. B. Rogers asked why Cheney Brothers did not give the buildings to the district outright. Mr. Cheney replied that the investment was a large one and the recreation feature being in the nature of an experiment, the firm felt they ought to assume the risk and not have the district do it. They felt if they own buildings they would be able to make them as good as they use and feel that they have that right.

Mr. Rogers then opposed combining the recreation buildings, library, etc., with school buildings. He said that the district should own its own schools and if a recreation feature was wanted it should be assumed by the district. Mr. Cheney replied that Mr. Rogers also criticized the plan of a private corporation owning the school buildings.

Rev. W. J. McDermott said that in the district we now have a school building owned by Cheney Brothers and one owned by the district. He asked Mr. Rogers if there was any difference in the management of those two schools. Replying to Father McDermott's question Mr. Rogers said that there was a vast difference. He recalled the fact that eight years ago he had published a report on the school system of the district. He recalled that the method of employing normal teachers in our schools. Now the district comments have been made on showing that the (Mr. Rogers) criticism was well founded and that

It took the learned school board eight years to make the discovery. Edmund Rogers spoke in favor of district ownership of school buildings and for the separation of the school from the recreation and library projects. The chair retired Dr. Weldon Cheney said that he is not a resident of the district and therefore not entitled to vote or vote in its proceedings.

Michael Foley was favorable to the acceptance of Cheney Brothers offer. Charles Cheney said there seemed to be a feeling that Cheney Brothers were opposed to a Y. M. C. A. This is far from the truth. The Y. M. C. A. is all right for some of the people of the people can see in its proceedings.

Mr. Cheney said that the school board had long desired that the taxpayers in the district take more interest in school affairs. From the present meeting he would infer that their prayers had been answered. He said there must be something the matter with Cheney Brothers in making this generous offer. He never heard of a like offer. There must also be something the matter with the district in not accepting it readily. Surrounding towns are looking at us and are surprised that we do not accept it promptly. The thing to do is to get together. Give us the recreation feature for our young men and young women. We are going to work for the best interests of our young men and women. We are going to work for the best interests of our young men and women.

F. H. Anderson admitted that at the present meeting he had opposed Cheney Brothers plan but has since come to believe it best for the district to accept the offer.

Charles Cheney moved that the discussion be closed and that the meeting adjourn at 9 a. m. when the question of consolidating the school buildings, Watkins, Stuebner and Magnell properties located near the burned building should be taken up. The district already own the land and a new building could easily be erected where the burned building stood. The district already own the land and a new building could easily be erected where the burned building stood. OPPOSE CONSOLIDATION

HOSE COMPANY NO. 4 WANTS SEPARATE HEAD-QUARTERS FROM NO. 3

Also Wants To Rebuild On School Street Where District Owns Site—Much Valuable Property in Immediate Vicinity Needs Protection

With the burning of the hose house of Hose & Ladder Company No. 4 the question of consolidating Companies No. 3 and No. 4 and housing them under one roof has arisen again. It will be remembered that this matter was brought up at the annual meeting of the fire district held last August, but met with scant approval at that time. It was not a question of dollars and cents. It was the best of interests and that Cheney Brothers could make and the firm recognized that fact. Mr. Hobenthal wanted the boys and girls of the district brought up under the best possible conditions. He earnestly and vigorously recommended a Y. M. C. A.

That closed the discussions and school district build an eight-room school building in the west part of the district and that the school committee have plans and specifications prepared and report same at a future district meeting. The motion prevailed by an overwhelming majority.

It is not probable that the district officials will attempt anything that is distasteful to Company No. 4 or to any other company. The district officials want the good will of all the members of the department and know that the best results can only be obtained by having that good will. However, they will act as the district interests them.

It would seem that the efficiency of the department would not be increased by having No. 3 and No. 4 under the same roof. Much better protection to the district property would surely be had by having the companies located in different sections of the district as at present. There is need of an efficient fire department. It is well established as much valuable property is located adjacent to the hose house and the apparatus can be managed readily at any hour of the day or night. As for the location of No. 4's headquarters it would seem inadvisable to remove it from its recent site. The district already own the land and a new building could easily be erected where the burned building stood. The district already own the land and a new building could easily be erected where the burned building stood. Municipal Ice Question

Editor News: I have received from Mr. Mathias Spies a copy of The News containing his reasons for favoring municipal ice. In view of our telephonic and mail communication I am accepting his invitation to reply.

In this article I shall not attempt to discuss Socialism, that unscrupulous but in its nature not more dangerous fraud, it seems to me, because to do so would be to discuss the individualism that is the basis of the present of ambition and advancement.

In passing however, may I refer Mr. Spies and your readers to Christ's story in the Bible of this man who answers, it seems to me the socialistic cry for more equal distribution. Our social and industrial inequalities are going to be a great deal more than a mere slogan.

Incidentally, let me ask Mr. Spies if he really, locally or nationally, seeks to eliminate the wage and suffering that comes from the machine and the drink habit? Why, then, does he not seek to secure personal and political corruption instead of wasting time in dealing with a very small incident of our domestic inequalities?

I assume human nature is very much the same in Manchester as it is in Williamsport with the same degree of selfishness. The experience of the latter as an owner of facts is better than a word of theory. We have tried municipal ice on a small scale here in the City of Williamsport.

One idea was to erect in Williamsport. It was built by it a small ice plant. The idea was to have a municipal ice plant, but the city fathers were not in favor of it.

Mr. Spies will say right here in the corner party the fact in the cost of the municipality. I grant this, but it is true, my contention is that the Socialistic idea eliminates the individualistic principle that, as I said earlier in this article, is the parent of ambition and advancement.

New Location

Replying to the generous offer which Cheney Brothers have made to the Nineteen school district wherein they have agreed to spend $100,000 if the district will spend $50,000, I would respectfully ask what this corporation would have to spend if the district votes to erect its own school building.

According to the grand list, which totals something over $13,000,000, Cheney Brothers as a corporation and as an individual are taxed for something over $300,000. What does this mean?

It means that if the Nineteen school district had a school building and recreation purpose Cheney Brothers would have to pay approximately $300,000, which is more than they have to pay to the district to give money to a district committee to build a school building.

THE SILO

Its Best Friends Are Its Oldest Friends. By JARED VAN WAGENEN, Practical Farmer and Breeder. The silo has been in use in America more than thirty years.

It is not feed alone that gives you a great yield. It is a matter of shade or sun, of water or dryness, of soil or of manure, and in clean dishes, all the while, instead of when you happen to think of it, or milk or meat or bone meal to make a good meal, as well as of bran and corn meal and oat meal.
