TURNING ON GAS.

Starting the Flow Gradually. There are comparatively few women who realize how much gas is wasted when they turn the flow on toits highest point. By experimenting you can ascertain the point at which your burners give the maximum amount of heat and will find out that no matter how much more gas is turned on the flame will remain the same. y turning on the flow of gas carefuluntil the maximum dame is reached and then never turning it beyond that point a great deal of gas can be saved the course of a month. A man who understands the inner workings of gas meters recently explained the most economical way of ighting a gas burner or jet. He said that when the gas is turned on very slowly until the point of lighting is eached no gas is wasted, but that if he gas flow is turned on to its maximum point at once it causes the meter to jump rapidly forward, and as a consequence it will register in the course of a month a good many feet of gas that have really been wasted. While all the foregoing economies may sound small, yet when taken to-

We use the best strong spring wheat flour obtainable. No guess work about it. We do not take the Miller's word for it. We use the best, because we know. We make sure, by testing the flour in our laboratory. We set a standard what a flour should be, and reject it, if it does not reach that standard. Then we use good yeast, handle the dough carefully and bake it thoroughly. Because of its lightness and tenderness and perfect digestibility, Goetz's bread is the most nutritious of all foods.
