REFUSE TO CALL SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

SELECTMEN GIVE PETITION "THE HOOK" IN UNUSUAL PROCEDURE

Storm Sewer for West Side Bone of Contention—Shall Town Pay Entire Cost or Shall Assessment Be Made?—Much Interest In Outcome of This Matter.

The board of selectmen, in special session last Tuesday evening, did the unusual thing in refusing to call a special town meeting after receiving a petition for same signed by 170 property owners on the west side of the town.

The petition related to recouping the vote passed at the annual town meeting which authorized the construction of a storm water sewer on the west side of the town.

The petition was the outcome of the special hearing held Thursday evening, June 15, 1916, when a majority of the property owners present in the proposed sewer were present and stated that while they believed the storm water sewer to be a necessity in that locality most of them were of the opinion that the town should pay the entire cost.

It was the purpose of the town fathers to assess the cost of the sewer against the properties within the watershed drained by the proposed sewer. Under this arrangement it was figured that the town would pay about one-third of the cost of the sewer and the balance would be met from assessments made against the property owners benefited, or within the watershed.

Following the hearing the selectmen ordered the storm sewer constructed and ruled that the cost be met by an assessment of benefits and damages.

It is no secret that the property owners on the west side of town are opposed to paying for this sewer. They believe the assessment plan. They believe it is such a big job and will benefit the town and the state highway to such an extent it should be met by the town and not assessed against the property owners.

The selectmen believe that the town would benefit largely by the construction of the sewer, as would the state highway department, but under the town-by-law governing the construction of the sewer, the property owners have the right to order the construction of storm sewers and assess the costs of same against the property owners benefited.

The assessment plan would be met by the town and not assessed against the property owners benefited. The town is also called upon to pay any property owners sustaining damages by reason of the construction of the proposed sewer.

The damages would mean by reason of the purchase of rights-of-way over private property for the laying of sewer mains and the highway construction of the selectmen have been at work for some months trying to arrange a satisfactory settlement with the property owners who will be called upon to furnish rights-of-way for the storm sewer.

Up to date it is stated that but few property owners have assented to the plan of the selectmen and it will in all probability be necessary for the selectmen to resort to condemnation proceedings before the necessary rights of way can be procured.

It appears that the condemnation proceedings are not the greatest concern which the selectmen have to contend with. It is other words the man "fallows", or in other words the man or woman who owns a small piece of property will do, is what is worrying the selectmen the most.

It was known that a petition calling for a special town meeting to act on this matter was in the works and after it had been presented to the board of selectmen it was referred to the board of selectmen.

Sad Fourth For Washington

On the 4th day of July, 1754, Colonel George Washington surrendered an army. It was only a small army, but it was the first defeat in war, at the hands of the French.

Although at that time only twenty-two years of age, he had been placed in command of a small body of troops which was marching toward Fort Duquesne.

With the help of a friendly Indian sachem, Hark King, he attacked the French in their camp at night, killing a number of prisoners. It was the first blood shed in the French and Indian war.

A few days later Fort Necessity was attacked by 1,500 Indians and French under De Villiers, and Washington surrendered on honorable terms.

In 1781 in Philadelphia some interesting Fourth of July toasts were drunk. General Barker proposed "Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence; may the spirit that inspired him be speedily revived."

Mr. Minter proposed "The memory of General Pike; long life to his friends and extinction to his enemies." G. W. Burtman proposed "The idol of democracy; not to be found in the island of Bona nor at the court of Berlin as a British spy, but in the virtue and reason of every honest American."

The Liberty Bell's Ringer. A man named Andrew McNare was the official bell ringer of the stationhouse in 1790 to 1776, the last entry of payment for such service being of the date of Sept. 15. While there is no actual report extant to prove that Andrew McNare rang the Liberty bell on July 4, 1776, it is altogether probable that he was the man who rang it.

Patriotism

A good poem to reread on this Fourth of July

Who never to himself hath said, This is my own, my native land; Whose heart hath not within him burned,

As home his footsteps he hath taken From wandering on a foreign strand? If such there breathe, go, mark him well: For him no muted trumpet sounds; High through his titles, proud his name, Boundless his wealth as wish can claim, Despite those titles, power and pelf, The wretch, concentered all in self, Living, shall forfeit far renown, And, dusty dying, shall go down To the vile dust from whence he sprung, Unwept, unhonored and unsung.

The Declaration's Printing.

The delegates from New York and those newly elected from Pennsylvania who had been sent in place of the men formerly opposing the declaration, as well as John Morris, signed the Declaration of Independence on the 2d of August. Thomas McKean of Delaware was allowed to sign later because he was absent from congress on that date, and newly elected members were allowed the same privilege as late as November.

By that time the new republic began to feel its strength, and congress decided to promulgate the act of the signers of the Declaration of Independence by ordering that printed copies of the document should be made by the act of the signers added. These were to be sent to every state, with the request that the declaration be put in the assembly records.

Mary Katherine Goddard, a woman who carried on the printing business on Broadside, Baltimore, probably never heard of woman's rights, yet it happened that it became her duty to print these copies of the American bill of rights, as she was then conducting the printing in which her brother, William Goddard, had failed some time before.

From these copies numerous others were sent to the printer before long every home boasted at least one copy of the original document which gave life to our republic. The spread of information, even rebellious, was desired to read the charter of American liberties.

Last Revolutionary Survivor. The last survivor of the Revolutionary war was John Gray, who died in Noble county, O., aged 104 years, on March 26, 1898. He came to the Buckeye State early in its existence. For many years before he died he drew an annual pension of $500 from the government. General John A. Bingham, having got a special act through congress for this Gray's father was killed at the battle of Stillwater, and he took his place in the army, being only six teen years old then. He served through the remainder of the war. His military record is on file at the office of the Ohio commissioner of soldiers' claims.
