Taking A Chance

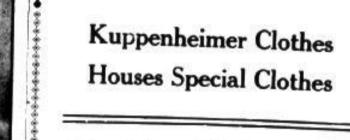

Sometimes it is good policy to take a chance, but in clothes buying it's a little different. You wouldn't think of taking a chance on a suit unless you knew there was a reputation behind it.

All our goods are the kind that have made good. Take the Kuppenheimer Clothes for example; years of scientific clothes manufacturing; something that isn't a gamble.

All of our other things to wear, such as hats shoes, shirts, underwear, etc., have years of manufact. uring experience and successful merchandising them, behind naturally they'll make good.

This is the headquarters in Manchester for wearables of the "make good" variety.

Why not investigate? Now's the time.

WINDSOR STREET

Adjutant and Mrs. Atkinson New Haven observed their fifteenth wedding anniversary here last week Thursday, They spent a few days in South Manchester at the home of the adjutant's mother. Mrs. Frances Atkinson of Center street. They received many congratulations upon the happy event and were given a royal welcome at the Salvation Army citadel. Adjutant Atkinson was formerly a member of the Salvation Army band and his fellow bandsmen were very enthusiastic in their greetings.

WITH REFERENCE TO CHILD LABOR AND ITS DELET-ERIOUS EFFECTS

U. S. Public Health Service Cooperating With State Authorities of Massachusetts In This Important Matter. Interesting Information Worth Studying.

It is so well recognized that certain occupations may involve serious dangers to young, growing persons that most States now have their child labor laws. Massachusetts, which has been a leader in legislation of this character, is now engaged in a systematic effort to collect information that may be of value in determining the need of changes in its present laws and regulations governing the employment of minors. At the request of the Massachusetts Board of Labor and Industries, Assistant Surgeon M. Victor Safford of the U. S. Public Health Service was detailed by the Federal Government to co-operate with the State authorities in a study of the effect of employment in varions occupations on the health and physical development of children now permitted by law to work therein. A report of this study with respect to the cotton manufacturing industry of Massachusetts has just been publish ed by the Federal Government a Public Health Bulletin No. 75, er titled "Influence of occupation o health during adolescence."

The physical condition of or 800 boys between the ages of and 18 employed in this industry different parts of the State received careful study. It was brought out that in Massachusetts boys between these ages for the most part do not remain long in the cotton mills. This fact and the strict regulations of the State governing the employment of minors may not make some of the conclusions reached in this local investigation equally true elsewhere, but among the facts disclosed the following may be mentioned. A considerable proportion of the younger boys and also of those over sixteen were undersized and physi cally undeveloped for their ages while those between fifteen and sixteen averaged larger than other classes of boys of their age with which comparisons were made This fact is explain ed by the accumulation in the mills of strong boys waiting to reach the age of sixteen to go into permanent undersized boys is not ascribed to the ferent to be new. effects of the occupation but to the fact that the cotton mill offers one of the few chances of employment for undersized boys. Evidence of injurious effects of their work or working conditions, even of the temperature and bumidity of the mills, on normal boys was seldom found, although further investigation of possible effects of atmospheric conditions is recommended. Probably as a result of the State regulations relative to the issuance of employment certificates comparatively few cases of dangerous diseases were discovered. There was, however, a wide variety of defective conditions disclosed by the investigation, many of them of such a character as to impair seriously the future health and economic usefulness of the individuals concerned if not remedied.

NO LICENSE LEAGUE MEETING TONIGHT

A meeting of the No-License League is scheduled to be held this evening at High School Hall for the purpose of organizing a local branch of that body. The meeting is open to the public and all persons interested in the problem of promoting the interests of the No-License League are invited to attend.

At the annual meeting of the Ninth School District, held Jone 29 1916, it was voted to permit the use of High School Hall on equal terms to all organizations seeking to use i for the discussion of public questions The members of the No-Liceuse League are the first to take advantage of this vote.

Under a ruling of the Ninth School District Committee a ban was placed High School Hall is concerned.

WITH 'LONESOME LUKI

Jingling Society of This Sort Shunned Hal Roach and Dan Linthicum Until Pathe Produced Their Diverting Picture Farce.

SUCCESS ACHIEVED IN THE HOUR OF FAILURE

Many a time has young America received renewed ambition by hearing of famous and successful men who were down to their last nickel before fortune favored them. The motion picture business has many such men in it, but not often do the stories of their early trials and fallures find their way into print. The heroes of those stories are usually too bus; to tell the tale of their failures. They have learned success and have lost interest in the past, save as it has taught them how to utilize the present and the

Hal Roach, general director of the Rolln Film Co., has, during the past year, made a name for himself as a comedy director. He it is who is responsible for the "Lonesome Luke" comedies on the Pathe program, a trade name that means something to all picture fans who love a laugh. The success of these comedies has been marvelous—they "caught on" at the very start, and yet only about twelve mouths ago Roach, who now chases around in a huge motor car and has money to burn, was broke. Such a story is typically American, and here is how it happened: Mr. Roach is a young man, under thirty in fact, and started his business cureer as a mail carrier, not one of the kind most of us are familiar with, dad in gray uniforms, whistling the tidings of their approach and pounding the city streets, but in Uncle Sam's service in Alaska, riding horseback for long distances through the wilderness summer and winter alike. With Den Linthicum, who supplied the luking the first letters of their names they compounded the word "Rolin" as the name of their company. Their pictures were sold to two different ompanies, both of which went broke. one after the other, owing them

The infant company thus went prety close to the rocks. With capital down to the zero point, Roach decided to risk all on one last attempt. He put his company "over the jumps" by putting them through every funny scene he could think of. There was no story and no rhyme or reason to it. He called it "Just Nuts" and sent it to Pathe. Pathe bought it and asked for more. In the meanwhile before the good news came Roach had got starved out and had secured a job as director with Essanay. When the good news came Roach quit his new job, took off his coat and sturted to tear into things. He interested Dwight Whiting, who was selling motor cars, and together they started to work twenty-four hours a day. Their first company contained several players Pathe said were good. There have been a certain few who are sometime designated as "old line republicans" who have made it their business at each recurring primary when Mr. Rogers came before the republicans of this community seeking their votes to employ every possible means they could to bring about the defeat and downfall.

The primary officers were as follows and were chosen by Registrar Thomas Ferguson: Moderator, W. S. Hyde; checkers, Robert J. Smith, George H. Howe, Isaiah Symington, Joseph Moore, Charles C. Warren and F. A. Sweet, all of whom are republicans. Philip Pierce was in attendance at the Democratic booth.
