A citizen's open meeting, unusual in character and of decided interest to this community is announced for Friday evening. Manch 26, at Foresters hall. On that evening Congressman Augustine Lonergan, representative of the First Congressional District of Connecticut at the national capitol at Washington, will pay a visit to his constituents in this place and will give an address. The meeting will be open to all citizens regardless of political affiliations.

Congressman Lonergan hen the advantage of having two years' experience in the Sixy-third congress, during which he came in bouch with official life at the national capitol in all its various phases. His topic will be: "Official Life in Washington, or Legislating for One Hundred Millions of People." Mr. Lonergan recently returned from mextanded trip to Washington, covering the inauguration of the President, and undoubtedly was in touch with the latest sources of information on the national problems which confront the national problems which confront the nation today. "Of course this is all very re ent." he explained. "Forty-five years ago there was not a single car nor a single mile of track in the whole of Japan. Why," he laughed, "I can remember the first jerky little trains that were run on the first line to be opened-the one between Tokyo and Yokohama. Glass was a new thing to the Japanese, and there were a great many windows broken and heads bumped during those first few weeks. Passengers persisted in trying to put out their heads without first raising the windows. Finally the glass smashing became so expensive and there were so many complaints over bruised and cut heads that the company was forced to paint a white bar on every window to teach passengers the nature of glass." Which story we could appreciate, for we had already noticed in the corner of a railread yard a little old car with white bars painted across the windows. Some of these curs, our companions told us, are still used as third s conveyances on newly opened branch lines, for there are still parts of Japan where the people do not quite understand glass,—Christian Herald.

Are You Sure You Lace Your Boots Correctly?

THE WAY HOW.

TATITH the price of all kinds of boots and shoes souring to keep pace with the high cost of foods, it pays women to take the best of care of their footgear. Polish, trees and oil after a thorough wetting all help, but it remained for Georgie O'Ramey to tell us how to lace them. "There is no reason why one cannot get full value out of a modern boot," said she recently. "My boots last me a long time simply because I take. care of them, particularly in the lacing. I always cross the laces, because that distributes the strain evenly on both sides of the shoe. Starting from the bottom, I take both laces and straighten them out, then proceed to lace the boot, taking up the slack at each hole, so that it is not necessary to jerk and tug to tighten them up. Laces should be measured to fit the foot, as too long a lace either flops untidily about or, if tucked inside, produces an ugly bulge."
