Alaska's Great Frost Depth. The depth of permanently trozen soil in polar and subpolar regions is a subject of perennial interest, concerning which few data are available. In numerous excavations made in placer mining in Alaska the ground is permanently frozen to great depths, beginning 18 inches or 2 feet below the

In the Klondike, according to the geological survey, the alluvium is frozen to a depth of about 200 feet. At Fairbanks permanent ground frost has been found at many places to a depth of more than 200 feet, and the deepest shaft there penetrated 318 feet of frozen alluvium. In Seward peninsula many holes in permanently frozen alluvium are more than 75 feet deep and one is nearly 200 feet deep. On the other hand, some ground in this region is not frozen, for reasons not understood. According to Dr. A. H. Brooks, when the moss is stripped from the soil the ground thaws, and with open cut mining or cultivation the upper level of permanent ground

CHARLEY RISBERG IS CONSIDERED ONE OF MOST FORMIDABLE RUNNERS IN GAME I ODACCO

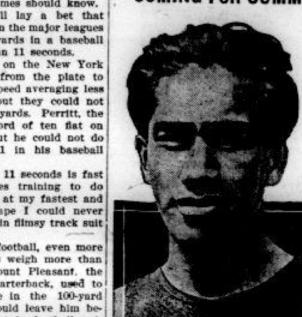

Charley Risberg of the champion White Sox team is considered by Manager Rowland as one of the most formidable base runners in the game, not because of his speed, but due to his daring. While Risberg would advise others to play the "safety-first" game, he takes all kinds of hazardous chances himself. Last season this player won a number of games for the Sox by bumping catchers at the plate when they tried to block him off.

That night I came to a river and as it was the first time my clothes had been dry in a long time, I thought I would try to keep them that way as long as possible. I accordingly took off all my things and made them into two bundles, planning to carry one load across and then swim back for the other.

The direction which I thought was north. I hadn't been at all sure of my bearings the day before, and as it had rained the sun falled entirely to help me out, but I was almost sure I had the fear I felt about meeting strangers was perhaps unwarranted. Fresh Beef Travels on a Rapid Schedule

Fresh beef for domestic markets goes from stockvards to retail stores within a period of about two weeks. Although chilled, this meat is not frozen; hence it cannot be stored for a rise in price.

A steer is dressed usually within twenty-four hours after purchase by the packer. The beef is held in a cooler at the packing house, at a temperature a little above freezing, for about three days.

It is then loaded into a refrigerator car where a similar temperature is maintained, and is in transit to market on an average of about six days.

Upon arrival at the branch distributing house, it is unloaded into a "cooler", and placed on

Swift & Company requires all beef to be sold during the week of arrival, and the average of sales is within five days.

Any delay along the above journey means deterioration in the meat and loss to the packer.
