Fire in the Rogers block on School street early Wednesday morning did several thousand dollars worth of damage before it was brought under control, besides endangering other buildings in the neighborhood. The fire was discovered shortly after three o'clock by tenants on the second floor of the building and instead of running to the alarm as they started to carry some of their household belongings, Fireman Arthur C. Gardner who sleeps at the quarters of Hose & Ladder Company No. 4, which is in the next building to the Rogers block, turned in the alarm from Box 18 at School and Main streets, calling out companies 1, 3 and 4. Fireman Gardner soon had the pump of No. 4 attached to the hydrant at the junction of School and Main streets and later streams of water were turned into the building.

The fire appared to have started in a partition on the west side of the structure between the store of Philip Lewis and Mr. Lewis's living apartments on the second floor. There is a tin roof on the building. This prevented the flames from getting well up. Dense clouds of smoke filled the front rooms and three stories of the building. The flames found their way through the partitions and the firemen had some difficulty in confining the blaze to the west end of the block.

O. S. FREEMAN
NOW EDITOR OF THE INSURANCE JOURNAL

O. S. Freeman, late editor of the Thompson Free Press, is now editor of the National Journal of Insurance. The current issue of that publication in making the announcement of having secured Mr. Freeman as editor gives space to the following complimentary observations, and also expresses the confidence reposed in the man who has just assumed editorial charge of that well known publication:

"Today we are thankful to be able to announce that we have secured the services of Mr. O. S. Freeman, an editor whose reputation throughout the state of Connecticut is well known. Mr. Freeman is president of the Connecticut Editorial Association and has conducted several newspapers in this and adjoining states. In 1908 he was elected the 80th president of the New Jersey Editorial Association and for a number of years was secretary-treasurer of the Pastoral Free Press. His name appears at the top of the editorial column which bears some significance."

We rest in peace, anticipating that, bearing printing office delays, "The Journal" will appear on time, well edited, clean makeup, endeavoring to carry out the plans of the present proprietors when it was purchased.

HONORS GIVEN
MISS GOTBERG
COLLEGE PAPER
BOSTON UNIVERSITY

(Contributed)

Miss Lena G. Gotberg, member of S. M. H. S. class of 1918, and a freshman in Boston University College of Liberal Arts, has been elected to the honor of "Most Beautiful Girl in the City Beacon," the college paper. Hitherto the paper has been the official organ for the College of Liberal Arts, but in the future the whole university will take part in its pages.

Miss Gotberg has also been appointed to the University Press Club, the work of which covers an area from Canada to China and south to India. In her business department in Boston, a newspaper has been established, one in Nanking, China, and the other in Havana.

The growth of Boston University has necessitated the purchase of a large stretch of land on the Charles River. Here in the near future buildings will be erected to accommodate the whole university and A. U. which will be segregated for women and men. Thus Boston University will give her students the ideal college life, with her dormitories, campus, the Charles River, and nearby the heart of the most historic city of United States, all of which will make her one of the foremost universities in the country.

McRae-Danher

Charles T. McRae and Miss Lillian Danher, both of Boston, Mass., were married by Justice of the Peace Robert E. Carney in the latter's office Wednesday afternoon. The bride appeared in a vauville sketch at the Park theater last week. Mr. McRae is advance agent of a theatrical troupe.

Wet weather has delayed the opening of the Lexington tunnel, the first of 16 to carry water into Boston. It has lately been overhauled and found to be in a good state of repair. A vote of the state legislature, passed on April 1st, authorizing $1,000,000 for the construction of the tunnel, was set aside by the governor, who said it would seem, at the date at which the pipe was laid.
