LIVING COSTS IN SMALL TOWN

About Half What It Is in the Cities, According to Writer in People's Magazine.

"I make the bold statement that a man with a wife and two children," says William D. Pease in People's Magazine, "can come back to a small town and live for exactly one-half what it costs him to live in the city, living conditions being equal. It will shock some city men to realize that authoritative figures have been compiled proving that 50 per cent of the 25,000,000 families making up the mass and the ordinary America are drawing less than $2,000 a year wages. Moreover, they are living upon it decently and saving money. If they were not content with great food issues have been floated during the late war successfully, or would we have such stupendous sums held away in the office who could not get away from the arc lamps and the pavements."

And She Wished Him to Know.

He was in Indianapolis on business, and as he knows few people here, he was lonely. The sight of a familiar face, the sound of an old neighbor's voice would have been worth more than he could express. Then came a messenger boy with a telegram. It might be good news, and it might be bad. Finally he tore open the envelope and saw it was from a Southern city. This is what it said:

"I recognized the initials because they stood for the various names belonging to the only girl. That the meaning of the message; that was a mystery. The man pored the floor with the unfolded message before his eyes, reading the three words over and over. Was there a hidden meaning? Had a poor operator messed it up so it meant nothing?"

"Finally he sought a newly made friend and thrust the telegram at him. The friend glanced at it, then repeated the words aloud. Immediately the stranger's face was wreathed in smiles, for now he understood.—Chicago News.

UNITE TO CUT LIVING COSTS

Workers at Lynn, Mass., Form Organization for Co-Operative Buying.

MOVE AIMED AT MIDDLEMAN

Production in Price of Foodstuffs in the First Objective—Home-Building Project May Be Added Later—Other Labor News.

Employees of the General Electric company, Lynn, Mass., have formed an organization of their own for co-operative buying, and expect in this way to reduce by a considerable percentage the high cost of almost everything. Foodstuffs will be taken up first and then the clothing will be taken up. After this it is likely that the association will go into other fields, and it will probably aid in the building of homes.

About 4,000 employees have joined the co-operative body so far, but it is expected that all of the 15,000 General Electric workers in Lynn will become members, and that similar movements will be inaugurated in other cities.

The $10 membership fee or share is returned whenever a member secures his connection with the "Lynn works." An effort will be made in every instance to get the source and eliminate the profits of the middleman.

OSTRICH AT HOME

Bad Fellow to Tackle in Fight, to the Great Bird.

Straining Nerves Found This Out to Its Perils—New Creatures of the Wild Care to Mix Things With "Plumes."

It was that peculiar hour when the forest landscape shimmered with heat, when the restless mirage hung on the horizon like visible dreams, and when the only things alive outside the plane were the dancing "dust devils"—and they were insatiable—and in the sky the specks floating which would have turned into vultures if anything had died.

All the antelopes and the zebras was motionless portions of the shade under the caudal-like cup-shaped trees and all the birds were still.

The silence was the silence of heat—parched, stinging, frying heat, which only the big hippos defied in the open, or among the rocks that were blistering to the touch.

Then came the voice, resonant, hollow, booming, powerful, extraordinary, like some distant war drum beating—the bass thunder of a lion. If lion ever challenged at midday, but neither lion nor natives ever could that conspicuous black and white hyena stalked along in that tremendous pace as he came alone and far across the plains, booming as he came. It was Plumes, the rock screecher, says a writer in London.

Plumes must have been somewhere out of sight after a hollow, feeding upon—oh! pebbles, for all I know; there seemed nothing else. But the animal does not like to be escaped. Plumes' super high-power potentialities, which was why Plumes came back now.

When 100 yards away, the giant bird left off booming; set all sail, to speak, which in his case meant opening stumpy wings adapted with beautiful plumes sufficient to stock a shop, and—let himself go.

Till that moment he had merely walked as fast as most beasts run, a supersonic Gibson walk. Now he ran, and the dust smoked out behind him like the exhaust behind a motor-car. Anyone who thought he could get out of him, or half as fast, for the matter, that was at full liberty to do so.

The striped hyena did not think he could, but he knew he had to try, and he started up—instinctively lit then behind a caecus bush—and raced for his skulking life.

Just about the time of the mimosas scrub, Plumes caught him up. The hyena recoiled upon his own tail, snapping nervously to fight the last light. But Plumes, head back, wings spread, wild-eyed, five feet high at the back, towered over him like Arsenal, and he died.

One kick was enough from that ferociously armed, twin-clawed foot—just one blasting down-arc—beating as the sledgehammer strikes.

Then Plumes struck away, consciously aware, of course, of his much smaller wife, herself quite formidable, lifting fat on her eight huge eggs hanging in the open, where the hyena had been stalking her. Aware, too, now, of something that had been a hyena before the kick landed, but now was one no longer.

Night came swiftly, as it does in these parts, racing over the mountains. The lions and the blunder were clamoring together among the hills, but this time Plumes did not answer. He had other work to do.

Stately the lion ostrich got up, stretched and faded away to feed. Slowly Plumes let himself down on the edge of the living.

His black plumes made him practically invisible in the dark, and if there were any who should scent the lion, and aim at its destruction, the great male bird was quite capable of tackling them single-legged, save only if they be lion lions, wild dog packs, or one very big leopard.

HAS LUNG MILITARY RECORD

Robert H. Tyndall, National Treasurer, Was in Command of Regiment Throughout War.

REYNOLDS ASSUMES NEW JOB

Lieutenant Colonel Now in Secretary of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Tyndall has a long military record, having enlisted in Battery A of the Indiana National Guard in October, 1897. The battery was mustered into the Twenty-seventh Indiana volunteer battery May 18, 1898, becoming a part of the expeditionary forces in Porto Rico, August 4 to September 7, 1898.

In 1900 he enlisted in the reorganized Indiana National Guard and served as corporal, sergeant, lieutenant and captain of Battery A, Indiana National Guard, to April 22, 1913, when he was commissioned a major and placed in command of the First Battalion, Indiana Field artillery.

He served on the border from July 10, 1916, to January 10, 1917, having been stationed at Liano Grande, Tex. He was promoted to the rank of colonel on April 15, 1917, and placed in command of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Field Artillery, Forty-second division (Rainbow), arriving in France October 31, 1917.

He was in command of a regiment throughout the war with Germany, until April 7, 1919. He was managed war veterans.

It is intended that the museum in this building will contain thousands of articles of military significance used in connection with America's participation in the world war.

Mr. Reynolds was in the service in this country and France for more than two years, spending several months in Washington following the armistice as chief of correspondence and assistant executive to Major General Kelly, then director of military aeronautics, continuing under the new director of air service, Major General Menoher, until he assumed this post in Indianapolis.

His broad experience and familiarity with the situation in Washington made him an able adviser for consultation by the legion headquarters staff, while the presence in the headquarters building of a war department representative was a great convenience.

The position he has accepted with the Indianapolis chamber of commerce is considered one of the best of that kind in the country, the Indianapolis civic-commercial organization having a membership of 4,000, while his city is second in the manufacture of automobiles and ranks high in the real estate and other industries, assuring a great future for the colony.

George H. Rennie is Named to Aid Lemuel Bolles in Conducting Legion Affairs.

Announcement has just been made of the appointment of George H. Rennie as assistant national adjutant of the American Legion, in which capacity he will assist Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant, in conducting the affairs of the organization.

Mr. Rennie, who is just past thirty, has had varied business interests. Following the completion of his education abroad, he was employed by the Press Syndicate company of New York for four years.

Later he became executive assistant to the late Willard Straight from 1913 to 1917, during that time he was connected with J. P. Morgan & Company, and the American International corporation.

Building as a private industry in 1917, he was commissioned a second lieutenant and was made a captain a few months before his return to the United States, December 29, 1918. He received a citation for conspicuous service in January, 1919. He was made assistant director of the bureau of war risk insurance, which position he held until his connection with the American Legion.

WAR MUSEUM AND LIBRARY

Permanent Institution of the American Legion Will Be Established at Indianapolis.

Announcement has been made at national headquarters of the American Legion that the permanent war museum and war library of the legion will be established at Indianapolis.

Provision was made for such establishment at the Minneapolis convention, and Indianapolis and Chicago, Indiana, will erect a war memorial building which will be devoted to the following purposes: First, national headquarters for the American Legion, as an auditorium of large capacity for public gatherings, to house a war library and war museum, and as headquarters for other veteran organizations of previous wars.

Bequests being available principally for the American Legion, it will also be open to meetings of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Confederate Veterans and the Spanish-American Legion.

A group of American veterans in Shanghai, China, are now converting their "Service club" into a post of the legion that will have jurisdiction over the entire republic, while in Tokyo, across the Yellow sea, a post is to be organized among Americans living in the former kingdom.

Charles Burnett, American military attaché at Tokyo, has asked that copies of the constitution and by-laws of the American Legion be sent him, as there are a number of his fellow-countrymen there who served in the late war.

For four years Annie-The-Sea-Gull has been the belle of the Sixa tribe. The blood of a long line of warrior fathers and of fish-cleaning mothers coursed through her veins.

Things stood thus when Sum Dum Thomas, a son of the Iyeta tribe, came to Sixa. Sum Dum Thomas wore the latest in clothes—low cut shoes, lavender socks and red neckties. He smoked cigarettes to a holder and said "yee-hee" and "yee-hee."

Did Annie-The-Sea-Gull fall for the blandishments of Sum Dum Thomas? She did. The wedding was followed by a postcard that lasted three days and nights.

Not satisfied to spend the honeymoon in Sixa, Thomas chartered a gas boat and they sought a beach 20 miles distant, where they could bill and coo and eat clams with no one to molest them.

Things went smoothly until one night an exceptionally high tide rolled in and rolled out again, taking with it the gas boat.

The young couple were left on a lonely shore near Eureka at this season of the year. All the provisions had gone with the boat, and the weather had turned too cold to fish.

Sum Dum Thomas calmly sat down in the tent, lighted a cigarette and announced they would go together to the "Happy Hunting Grounds."

But Annie-The-Sea-Gull had not depended from a long line of warriors for nothing. She grabbed Thomas by the shoulder, plucked the cigarette from his mouth and put him to work hauling out timber for a raft.

Four days later a clumsy craft was laboriously piloted into Sixa harbor, propelled by a sail that once was Annie's wedding dress. The entire tribe was at the landing when the strange craft grounded on the beach and the wet, bedraggled honeymooners stepped ashore.

Not dejected to notice any of the crowd, Annie-The-Sea-Gull took Sum Dum Thomas firmly by an arm and led him to one side, where she put her mouth close to his ear. In tones that left no chance for a mistaken meaning she hissed:

"K! as a hu in et sum ga se ga?"

IN OTHER WORDS, SKEDADDLE

Short and Impetuous Socrates That Marked the Ending of Romance of Alaskan Belle.

"K! as a hu in et sum ga se ga?"

The sentence, fairly blazed in the language of the Sixa tribe, marked the end of an Alaskan romance that set a village on edge and brought out the latest powers of an Indian maiden.

They used to call a man a "sport" when he bought an automobile

THAT was before the days when pretty nearly everybody owned one—or could, if he wanted to.

There was a lot of waste about motoring in those days. A man spent a lot of money on his car and never thought very much about what he was getting in return.

When a man buys a tire nowadays he has a pretty definite idea of what he expects to get out of it.

The dealer who sells him one that gives him less than he expects isn't likely to get any more of his business.

That's one of the reasons why we handle U. S. Tires—and recommend them to the motorists of this community.

The U. S. reputation for quality is not built on any one tire. There is not one standard for large U. S. Tires and another standard for small ones. Every tire that bears the name "U. S." is built the best way its makers know how to build it. The oldest and largest rubber concern in the world cannot afford to play favorites in seeking its public.

Come in and tell us what you are looking for in tires. We can probably tell you whether you need a U. S. Nobby, Chain, Usco, Plain, or a Royal Cord.

QUALITIES OF IDEAL CITY

Another pulled the curtain, and another was cutting too fast and splitting the food from its spoon, while another put its foot on the table.

That what are books good for if all the pictures are not true? asked Tim. In despair Mrs. Pusscat turned to the last picture, hoping that would be one of a well-behaved cat.

It was called the Lazy Pussy, and there sat a big kitty with mice running over her back and a bird perched on her head, while two little mice held up her long tail.

Mrs. Pusscat stared and then she said "Oh, that's a book!" "That's not a book," said Tim. "It's a picture book," she told the kittens. "You come with me out to the barn and look to catch mice."

Tim and Tom began to laugh and their mother said, "These little kittens were all very bad and she hoped their mother put them all in bed without their supper."

"Oh, let us play like that!" meowed the kittens Tom and Tim. "I want to drink," meowed Tom. "No, I want to drink," meowed Tim.

SCHOOL DAYS

Why Prince Eitel is Execrated in France.

Here is how Newell Dwight Hillis, in his book entitled "German Attacks," tells of the crisis for which Prince Eitel, son of the Kaiser, now stands under indictment in France, the seeking and ruin of a beautiful chateau.

"One of the historic chateaux is that of Arrivour, rich in noble associations of history. It was one of the class of buildings covered by a clause in the international agreements between Germany, France and the United States and all the civilized nations, safeguarding historic buildings. For many months it was the home of Prince Eitel, second son of the Kaiser.

When a just and jury had found at the ruins of the chateau the aged French servant, who understood the electric lighting and had charge of the gas plant during Eitel's occupancy, stated that he heard the German officers telling Eitel Frederick that he would degrade the German name if he destroyed a building that had no need to war, that could be of no aid or comfort to the French army, and that he would name his name and content of the chateau and its contents.

He then told the Kaiser that he would name his name and content of the chateau and its contents. He then told the Kaiser that he would name his name and content of the chateau and its contents.

PUSSCAT AND THE BOOK

Mrs. Pusscat was reading over the book with her two kittens, when all the family were out when she happened to find a picture book.

"Why should I not teach my children from a book just as people do?" she thought. "Here are A. B. C's and plenty of pictures of cats."

So she called her children to her and began their first lesson, but the kittens did not wish to learn their A. B. C's. They wanted to look at the pictures.

First, there was a picture of two kittens drawing another in a basket.

GAS SHUT-OFFS ARE NEEDED

IN BUILDINGS WHERE LEAD PIPE CONNECTIONS ARE USED

At a recent meeting of the board of selectmen the Manchester Gas Company was ordered to install shut-offs on all gas connections made in this town in the future.

Francis E. Eysenbach of the Hartford City Gas Light Company, owners of the local company, appeared before the selectmen Wednesday evening to protest against the order.

He said no shut offs are used in Hartford or in any other city of any considerable size in this country.

He said it was an unnecessary expense and that the installation of shut-offs was not warranted by the few fires which occur by the use of gas.

He explained the matter to the apparent satisfaction of the board. In executive session the selectmen decided to allow the matter to lie on the table for further investigation.

Mr. Eysenbach stated that the Manchester Gas Company used all iron gas pipes and all iron pipe joints and connections. It does not use any lead pipe or make any lead connections.

This being true he claims that there is no danger from the gas connections. If a building gets on fire the iron pipes will not melt and therefore the gas is not a menace.

Where lead pipes are used he alleges that danger does exist as the lead pipes have a lower melting point than do those of iron. He says he never knew of a case where the iron pipes melted during a fire in any building anywhere.

It would seem therefore that the board of selectmen would be justified in modifying their recent order in so far as at least as new gas installations of the gas company are concerned.

There is another feature however that is worthy of note and should be carefully considered. There are many buildings in South Manchester that were supplied with gas before the present gas company came into existence.

These buildings therefore have lead gas pipes and consequently are subject to the danger which the board of selectmen's recent order for shut-offs sought to avert.

The selectmen's order should be made to apply to all such cases and the necessary shut-offs should be installed upon in the interest of public safety. Don't wait until the damage is done. Forestall it by action now.

The unwarranted high price of vegetables prevailing heretofore admonishes poor people having families to support that it behooves them to actively interest themselves in the problem of planting and cultivating home gardens.

"THE KING IS DEAD LONG LIVE THE KING"

Nothing better could be quoted today in the sphere of our movie stars. Public opinion is a stronger power than all the laws and ordinances which combined elevate an ordinary artist to the position of a movie queen.

The suggestion however is neither by vote, inheritance nor nomination. However, in democratic countries there are no queens to govern people nothing is in the traditions or the constitution to prevent the public from having an idol. It so happens that in the movie field this idol is called a queen. But there can only be one at a time, and when this one falls off her pedestal another steps forth to take her place.

Hall therefore is the one who, who although qualified for a long time to take a place in the screen products, had no reason to occupy.

The vacancy, according to public opinion, has now been awarded to no other than the versatile and beautiful "ANITA STEWART."

Hall again, proclaim the movie fans, to our new Queen "Anita" who by her artistic work and personality has earned the "rightful title of "Queen of the Movies," and who will give Manchester admirers an opportunity never to forget Tuesday and Wednesday at the "Park," to show that she is the rightful owner of her new honor by what she is going to demonstrate in the ever popular story, "In Old Kentucky."

She will on Queen Day and will be present next week on do homage to the new, popular, and up to date queen.—Sherwin.
