French slipper, which makes the foot appear so small, wages quite as fiercely as did last season's conflict between he long skirt of American origin and the short French one, the outcome of which was a happy compromise. As in the case of the skirt, so it is with the shoes. The French last has been so modified by our American shoemakers as to prove a real rival to the long, slender shoe.

Never has the vogue for fancy footwear been so marked as it is at the present time and never have prices been so high. The vanity of the French woman seems to culminate in her footwear. The very short skirts which continue to be fashionable seemingly afford the excuse for this wild extravagance in dressing the foot. Stockings and shoes of almost priceess quality, exquisite design and delicate perishability make up what appears to be the most important detail t the fashionable tollette. These novelty shoes are all in low-cut design o show the stockings and the neatly turned ankles. Every one has its buckle or its strap, which in turn is

DID YOU DREAM OF FALLING?

THIS is one of the standard or typ-I ical dreams and one over which the scientists have expended a vast amount of "gray matter." They are generally dreams of peculiar vividness. Lucretius—to B. C., the celebrated Roman philosopher, in his work on psychology speaks of this dream and Cervantes in "Don Quixore" makes the innkeeper's daughter say that she has many times experienced this dream and awakened to find berself as weak and staken as if she had roully fallen. DOCTOR CORIAT says "Everybody dreams and ridiculous it may appear." But with regard to the prophetic quality of dreams he says: "From a strictly scientific standpoint such an interpretation would be very superficial in that it did not take into full cognizance all the complex facts which may produce a dream." For instance it must be proved what the event "foretold" in the future never existed as a wish in either the conscious or unconscious founds of the dreamer. In my experience I have yet failed to find one genuinely prophetic dream.

The Spirit of Patriotism

Paris Rich in Memorials of Lasting International Friendship.

Probably no city in the world is so rich in memorials of an international i friendship as Paris so many are those which bear witness to the close ties between France and the United States. By their number and their nature they have long impressed the many American visitors to Paris, and they have had a new interest and significance for the hundreds of thousands of American soldiers who have seen them during the past three years. Statues and stately memorials in squares and parks, busts and paintings in public buildings, tablets, monuments, the names of streets and avenues, the cherished traditions of this neighborhood or that, all remind us eloquently of what lay behind the impulse that on the very first day of the great war carried the heart of America swiftly and unerringly to the side of France. Ever since 1790, when jamin Franklin, the city has manifested frequently the strength of its ties
