WAYS OF TESTING DIAMOND

If One Is Suspicious of Its

Is your diamond genuine? If there is any doubt in your mind, the best thing is to take it to a reliable jeweler. You can, however, test the stone yourself if you know how. And here's how; A small drop of water on the face of a clean diamond may be rolled about with the point of a pin without losing its globular shape. On an imitation diamond the water will spread. Claim was laid to this region by both Great Britain and the United States as has been seen in the story of Oregon. In 1818, when the boundary between Canada and the United States was settled, this line was definitely placed from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky mountains. But no agreement could be reached west of that and it was left under an arrange

GIRLISH DRESSES AND HATS Tendency to Use Big Sashes on After noon and Evening Attire-De-

On the more girlish evening and afternoon dresses, notes a Paris ashion writer, there is a tendency to use big sashes of tulle or of chiffon liberally furnished with bows and ends, regardless of any type of pattern. They suit the gown and the wearer-that is all. And that they succeed in doing admirably. Here again the sash and its ends are apt to supply the only sparkle of color on the whole, the rest of the gown being either of white or of black and serving merely as a background for the display. Towels for 250. The habit of placing one big flower 59c Bleacher' Torkish Towels at at the side of the waistline is another one that has found great favor with designers. It is apt to be very much of a modern art flower with single buge petals made of velvet in startling colors. On an evening gown, the flower often repeats a suggestion of color in another part of the gown and by that process makes the color take a most effective position in the whole design. Hats of the middle senson are also things of compromise; many of the extraordinary shapes that threatened have passed away. The compromise

UNUSUAL INTEREST IN SHOES Strapped Slippers and Colonial Pumps Are Prime Favorites; Winter

Choice in Doubt. Interest in shoes has been steadily increasing for several years. This season the climax appears to have been reached, writes a fashion correspondent. Indeed, it scarcely would be possible for this article of dress to become any more attention arresting or intricate than at present.

For day-time wear slippers of the strapped variety and colonial pumps are running an even pace. It is too early to predict which type will find greater favor this winter The strapped slippers have been with us for some time and, therefore, we might expect that they would have run their course by now; but not so. Every day sees more unusual effects produced, Straps are made to run in every direction. Some are achieved by cutting out portions of the shoes. There are shoes so cut away that very little is left other than a sole, a heel and a few straps. In opposition to these models are tongue effects, the tongues being very large and in many instances beavily trimmed with stitchings or appliqued strips of leather. Sometimes this trimming, in addition to being applied to the tongue, covers the toe portion of he shoe. One medel, made from black patent leather, has strips of dull kid used in this way.
