U. S. "DRY" FORCES FACE MORE PROBLEMS

Five "wet" foreign liners under "Homebound Seals" Some "Liquor House" as Additional Supplies.

New York, June 25—Dry forces need a new problem today as five "wet" foreign liners, their stocks colored and removed from the wreckage they were laid out on the floor and given emergency treatment and pushed to hospital.

As the wet liners, a sheet of flame shut into the air. Fire, which would have meant death to the men than three score persons jammed in the wreckage, was averted by the quick arrival of firemen.

As they three streams on the scattered cars, smoke filled the street.

Passengers Climb From Window. Great confusion followed the crash. Some passengers climbed from the windows of the second car, suffering only from bruises and a great fear and shock, and screaming and hysterical about the street.

Others crawled out, covered with blood and with great gasping words.

Extremist ruled the crowds that gathered and police reserves were called out from six stations to control the throng.

Limps could be seen sticking out from the splintered tangled mass of wood and iron in the street. In the dim faint cries could be heard from somewhere under the debris.

Some of the protruding arms and legs were moving convulsively. Others were still.

Ten firemen arrived quickly at the scene and administered first aid to the dying and injured. They worked at the emergency hospital in the sub-branch post office in the Long Island Railroad station building and at the wreck.

Where were placed down women and children bound with pain and cried for help.

Find 3 Clapped Together. Among the dead were a young woman and an old woman, clasped in each other's arms. The body of a gray haired old man, yet unidentifiable, was also removed from the debris.

When firemen reached the wreck they threw off their rubber coats rushed to the work of rescuing the victims.

The work was difficult. Though legs and arms and occasionally the head and trunk of an impressioned woman and child could be seen, it was dangerous to attempt to chop away the splintered timbers and twisted iron that pinned them down and crowbars had to be employed to pry the weight off their bodies.

List of Victims. Partial list of dead and injured in wreck: A woman named Wright. Mrs. M. L. Lowell.

The injured: Annie Igrammo, broken arm and internal injuries. Louis Sarasky, broken back. Harry Towns, possible fracture of skull.

Marne Logan, possible internal injuries. Frank Newman. Fred Vogel. Marie Greenberg. Stella Greenberg. Irene Toohill. Walter Zeev. Louis Meringer. Elmer M. Green. Joseph J. Burns.

Manchester Silk Spent a Glorious Week-End

The Manchester Silk spent a glorious week-end winning both their scheduled games before crowds that filled the grandstand, and every available bit of space at the West Side Park. By far the most notable achievement was the victory on Saturday from the Derby's Fenian Silk. Boston, N. J. Country here with the enviable record of having beaten many of the big league teams, including the New York Giants the world's champions, in the city of Boston. The Fenian Silk, from New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, were the team that had been coming out of all stages of the season, and they were the only team to have beaten the New York Giants, the world's champions, in the city of Boston.
