The trend of costs was downward. Again in April, 1923, a voluntary reduction i token rate was made, two tokens being sold for 15c. This was a reduction of 10% over the previous rate, and was made because increased riding had kept the trend of revenues upward, and wage reductions and other economies in operation had kept the trend of costs downward. This reduction has resulted in a steady downward trend of revenues, because, while riding has increased under the 2 for 15c rate, the increase has not been sufficient to offset the 10% reduction. In addition, wage rate increases to employees were necessary in June, adding over $750,000 a year to payroll costs. The trend of costs is decidedly upward.

to be downward, and vice versa.

161/2%. This was done as the trend of revenues

From June (the date of the wage increase) to December 31, 1923, the decrease in revenue compared with the same period of 1922 was $197,000 or 2%. If the decrease in revenue by months is considered, the trend is readily perceived. The since June, 1922, slightly over a million dollars has been paid to the state on this long overdue account, as well as over $840,000 paid in current taxes since that date.

It is generally assumed that the financial condition of the Company has benefited by the recent mild weather conditions.

The opposite is the fact.

On account of the small number of automobiles in service last winter, the increased riding on the trolleys produced $100,000 more than the cost to keep the tracks clean.

These figures are presented to you so that you may know all the facts which make necessary a readjustment of token fares at this time. The increase over the present rate is exactly 5-6 of a cent. When prices fluctuate in other lines of business, the differences in costs usually amount to considerably more than this. The Company does not desire to lower the present standard of service to its riding publice. But it asks the consideration of its patrons of the fact that when revenues decrease and costs increase, a change in price, or rate of fare, is imperative, if service is not to be seriously impaired-exactly the same as in every other business helping to produce necessary commodities.
