-- Ambition --

The beginning of all success is ambition. Only those succeed who have made up their minds that they will succeed.

Sometimes a wish is mistaken for ambition. All of us wish that we could succeed. But some are too lazy to make the necessary effort. They lack ambition. Some begin with the desire, and back up that desire with the willingness to work, but their work is misdirected. Instead of using their heads along with their hands, they use their hands only. And success is not wrought with hands alone. Fully 75% of the process of succeeding is headw K.

Ambition, then, is developed only when the brain is used effectively in directing the work of the hands.-Personal Advancement.
