To avoid having red, rough and coarse looking hands, a woman must avoid using common household soaps which irritate the skin. She must be as careful about the kind of household soap she uses as she is about her toilet soap.

Thousands of intelligent, careful women who realize this, insist upon Kirkman's Soap for all their household and laundry uses.

THEY know that Kirkman's is as harmless to the hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap and, being free from irritating lye, will not injure the most

It is made of the purest and finest materials. It contains absolutely no adulterants such as starch, tale or water-glass, which have no cleansing value. And with these merits, it is a most thorough

John Clifford has moved his family to East Windsor Hill. He will be foreman for Ahern Brothers. Mrs. Byron E. West entertained at bridge whist Monday afternoon. The Manchester Green Dramatic Club will give an entertainment in the hall tonight, under the auspices of the Federated Workers. The first part of the program will be a play of an hour's length, entitled "Left in Charge", with seven people in the cast. Following this fourteen members of the club will put on a minstrel sketch called "Two Prunes in a Box of Chocolate Drops." Between the acts there will be instrumental and vocal solos.

At the special Thursday evening service held by the Federated church there special music "How to Create a World of Your Own" was the subject of the evening. Membership Sunday will be Easter morning April 20.

BRITISH KING AND QUEEN. OPERA FANS, THEY INSIST

London April 11-King George and Queen Mary have been at pains to repudiate the suggestion that they do not like grand opera. They have been making a point of attending Coyena Garden Opera House night after night during the present season. The British Royal family make this quite a domestic function. King George leans forward from his box, his face wreathed with smiles, aplauding heartily. Queen

Uncle Wiggily's Adventures

2. The Fox thought to himself: "I'll wait until Uncle Wiggily gets his basket filled with good things to eat. Then I'll grab him and his basket also." So the bad chap slunk after the rabbit. Pretty soon the bunny came to a fur shop with a stuffed bear in front. "I'll hang my umbrella on this stuffed bear," said the bunny. "Then I'll fasten my basket cover on tight or it may blow away. The wind is strong."

3. Uncle Wiggily was thinking so much about what sort of an adventure he might have, that he walked away and forgot all about his umbrella hanging on the stuffed bear. The bunny had hopped only a little way when, all of a sudden, the Fox began chasing him. "Stop!" howled the Fox. "I want you, Uncle Wiggily. And I want what you have in that basket!" But the bunny hopped away as fast as he could.

4. The rabbit gentleman ran around in a circle and soon he was back at the place of the stuffed bear. "I've left the Fox behind?" said the bunny to himself. "But he will soon be coming around the corner. Before he does I'll play a trick on him." Uncle Wiggily fastened his umbrella to the outstretched paws of the stuffed bear. "I am going to give you a ride in the March wind, Mr. Bear?" laughed the rabbit.

5. After he had fastened his umbrella to the stuffed bear, Uncle Wiggily hid in the doorway until he heard the Fox come running around. "I wonder where that rabbit went?" barked the Fox. "I'll never tell you?" chuckled the bunny to himself. "But you'll soon he a surprised party, Mr. Fox?" As the Fox rushed past, not seeing him, Mr. Longears pushed the bear out where the wind could blow on it.

6. The Fuzzy Fox ran along, looking here and there for Uncle Wiggily. He didn't see the rabbit, but, all of a sudden, hearing a queer noise behind him, the Fox looked and saw the bear coming along. It was only the stuffed bear, but the Fox didn't know that. "Oh, Good Mr. Bear! Don't chase me!" begged the Fox. But the bear never said a word. Along on his wheels he rolled "Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny.

7. Not being alive, the stuffed bear couldn't steer himself. And, after being blown along after the Fox for a while, the bear bumped into a tree and was smashed. "Oh ho! I see!" cried the Fox, turning around to look. "Uncle Wiggily played a trick on me! Well, he fooled me at first, but he can't fool me any more. I'll run after him and nibble his ears. His umbrella is blowing away, too! I'm glad of it!"

8. Leaving the broken, stuffed bear, the Fox turned around and soon was on the trail of the rabbit again. "Just wait until I get you!" howled the Fox as he chased the bunny. "I'm not going to wait if I can help it!" cried Mr. Longears. Away he hopped as fast as he could go. After him chased the Fox. Then the March Wind, wishing to be kind, blew Uncle Wiggily's umbrella right in front of the rabbit gentleman.

9. "Stop! Stop! Let me nibble your ears!" howled the Fox. "No! No!" answered Uncle Wiggily. Then he saw, just in front of him, his umbrella being blown along. "If I can only get hold of that," thought the rabbit, "It will be as good as an air ship, and I can get away from the Fox." Giving a big jump, Uncle Wiggily caught his umbrella. The wind blew under it and lifted him up. "Good-bye, Mr. Fox!" he cried.
