AN ARTFUL DODGER
From statistics, reports, and investigations of all kinds all are fairly familiar with the statistical personage known as the average man. But our knowledge of him is vague and shadowy, and the more we try to make such knowledge definite the more we are baffled.

In the abstract we know what his feelings are. He is in favor of upholding the constitution; of giving everybody a square deal, and of acting pretty much as he ought to. We could recommend him as a thoroughly good fellow; five years ago he wasn't averse to taking a drink now and then—not too much, just enough to keep him an average man. Today he doesn't drink at all. He is law-abiding and loyal to his family and community.

But all this is abstract, and does little more than induce a desire for closer acquaintance with him. We should like to know, for instance, how long we can make a $30 suit of clothes last, or doesn't he even wear anything so cheap as that? It may seem a trifling thing but it isn't reasonable to want to know whether the average man sleeps on his right side or his left?

We may not grieve to know precisely what he works at; he probably works at whatever he can find to do, but the question remains—What time in the morning does he get up? And this one suggests the further query as to whether he awakes with joy in his heart, and greets his alarm clock as his best long-lost friend, or whether in anger he snatches up his mechanical dispeller of dreams and chucks it under the covers before it has finished his matutinal hymn.

Then there is the matter of shaving. Does the average man shave, and how often, and when? It is strange that we do not know these things about one with whom we are as familiar as we are with the average man from the volumes of literature about him put out every year. We are not much concerned with what he eats; he probably eats whatever the market affords. But does he really eat as they say he should in book on etiquette—some kind of soup with a motion of the spoon away from him, and others with the spoon coming towards him?

Despite assurances from statisticians and investigators to the contrary, our knowledge of the average man is very limited. He could do a great deal for social uplift and education if he were less secretive and exclusive than his actions seem to make him.

BASEBALL
King Baseball regains his throne today to reign for another seven months in renewed splendor. Of all monarchs he alone as the years roll by loses none of his traditional public favor. For Americans the year comprises five seasons—baseball, spring, summer, fall, and winter—but the greatest of these is the season of baseball. What other season of the year is looked forward to with as much expectation and yearning as that of the Great American Game?

Not all of the one hundred and ten millions of men, women and children in the United States are all-year-round or all-season-round baseball enthusiasts, but is there one who does not realize the triumphant coming of the three great days of the baseball calendar, which are the opening day of the season and the days of the first and last days of the world series? Spring and fall mean little to the baseball fan except that they herald the coming of the first game of the season and of the world series, respectively.

There have been some, albeit few, who have depreciated the greatest sport of the Americans. Have they not overlooked the advantages it provides for millions of humans to get out doors for a part of at least one hot afternoon a week, to trust themselves into an all-diverting amusement, to get together as a great community and with one thought? Have the opponents of baseball overlooked the verity that loyalty and patriotism are general, that loyalty to the home team is made of the same cloth as loyalty to one's town and country. It is as natural for peoples to have their national pastimes as to have their religions, political beliefs, and other national characteristics. Baseball is a distinctive characteristic of the American people.

INTOLERANCE
Recently a widely known clergyman in New York from his pulpit mentioned by name several leaders in his branch of the Christian faith and denounced them as infidels. Now another refers to some of his brethren as "balloon chasers." The only ground for these uncharitable remarks lies in that the men thus held up to scorn hold views on some subjects somewhat at variance with the opinions of those who direct the darts.

If it had been possible to try to convince a man by abusing him or reflecting on his intelligence, for that method never wins. Besides that, men of the cloth set a bad example to the laity in indulging in such discourteous language. It is un-Christian, too. If the men thus referred to are infidels or balloon chasers there would be more likelihood of reclaiming them to the true faith by reasoning with them in good humor, than by abusing them. However, the latter may feel that they are best exercising their rights in holding whatever beliefs they have. And if they are sincere certainly it is not the business of anyone else to judge them.

We are not concerned whether one is right or the other wrong—it is the tolerance that is shown that is important. If one feels sure he has the right view that should justify him in abusing them. However, the latter may feel that they are best exercising their rights in holding whatever beliefs they have. And if they are sincere certainly it is not the business of anyone else to judge them.

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

HUGHES
By DR. FRANK CRANE

Charles Evans Hughes, the Secretary of State for the United States and the heir-apparent to the Presidency if anything should happen to Mr. Coolidge, is a man whose personality is worth knowing. He once came very near being elected President. If he had succeeded, it would by no means have been a calamity, for he is proper Presidential timber.

When you first see Mr. Hughes you are prepared to be struck by the appearance of his whiskers, which have furnished abundant material for the caricaturists. But to me his most striking feature was his teeth. They are strong, long, white teeth, and although they are exposed in a genial smile, they give one the impression that he means business.

Hughes, as an English butler would say, is a "largish" man. He gives the appearance of an abundant vitality, plenty of intellect and plenty of nervous force. He is genial, somewhat jovial in his conversation, has a good ringing laugh, and uses it.

He is a lawyer. He goes at things after the method of lawyers. When he talks upon a subject he uses plenty of words, but uses them well. His mind struck me as being first of all orderly. His thoughts came easily. Evidently he did not leave his ideas lying around loose, but each was in its proper file and pigeon-hole.

He is a clear speaker because he is not a messy thinker. Hughes has ideals and enthusiasms, but his mind is predominantly an organizing mind. In his practicality, in his thorough knowledge of the materials he has to work with and of the limitations involved in carrying out any theory, he resembles Lloyd George.

As Coolidge recalls Grant, Hughes recalls Roosevelt. He has the same abundant vigor and overflowing vitality. The Secretary of the United States plays a very important part in the government of the United States. He is the liaison officer of the country. Upon him largely depends our relations with other nations.

A weak, vacillating or foolish Secretary of State could get us into trouble with other nations more quickly than any other official except the President himself. Hence the necessity for dignity, diplomacy and above all practicality in this office.

It is a good thing that the Secretary of State is appointed by the President. It would never do to elect him. Mr. Hughes is inclined to take very seriously his responsibility of keeping peace with the other nations of the world. He realizes both the importance of his job and how ticklish it is.

He has done great service in thoroughly organizing the diplomatic branch of the government. It seems to me that his position in refusing to recognize Russia is a good thing. What other nation of the world, or whatever they may call the policy of their country, is not with them a mere economic problem, it is a religion, and into it they throw all the fanaticism of a Mohammedan.

And it is a religion the first creed of which is to make liberty. They regard the very basis upon which this country is founded as being sacred to them. What we call personal liberty, individual opportunity, and the rights of property they call by the bugaboo name of Capitalism.

If their country were recognized by the United States every Russian consulate over here would be a center of disturbance. Our American labor leaders know this, and would regard our recognition of Russia as a very dangerous thing. It would simply authorize and protect a launch of the wildcat party makers in the world in their efforts to smash the American government and American peace and prosperity.

This should be a fortunate day, stimulating and inspiring, according to astrology. The Sun and Saturn combine in benefic aspect. During this time it is well to make efforts to better one's condition. Employees should seek promotion.

There is a good sign for labor, which will have a great impetus in industrial and financial power. The seen prophecy that the planetary influences which have caused the Labor Party of England to gain power will be active in the United States.

While the national election will show political progress for workers they will make most rapid progress in this country by means of financial institutions and business organizations. Q—"I can't afford to belong. I am begged to death for money."
A—Being invited to join the Chamber of Commerce is not a begging proposition. It is an opportunity to line up with the best element for concerted action. Surely you don't want to be the beneficiary of something to which you do not contribute either time or money. The Chamber is the outstanding organization of the town, regardless of the number of others. It is the only one financed and equipped to look after its business interests in a broad way. It is not too much to ask you to support such a body. Figure out what it amounts to per week or per day—a very small sum, but when added to what others are investing through the same medium it makes the substantial amount necessary to advance the town's interests in a big way.

NOT A CLUB WOMAN.
The news dispatches recently carried a story about a woman who used fast fashions and crochery to discipline her husband.

NOT REFINED.
We know a good joke about crude oil, but dare not print it.

A HAMMOCK, to be ideal, should be large enough for one, but strong enough for two.

Happiness isn't scarce. It just isn't being used very much.

SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT.
The minds of the trees in Connecticut are confederate.

About the only way a woman can shoot two men and go free is to be both pretty and a bigamist.

Business and professional men should wear rubber heels during the spring months—they won't scratch the top of their desks.

A practical costume for the hot months would be a both tub full of water.

Some men seem to always order three eggs for breakfast—two for themselves and one for their vest.

HE RESIGNED.
We know of several public officials who would do well to emulate the act of a Los Angeles judge.

WOULD MATCH FULLMAN SHEETS.
Napoleon's rightabout is to be offered for sale. It is said to be quite short.

The sale of wrinkle removers would fall off if people would stop worrying about things that never happen.

Perhaps the reason she danced so divinely is that she was and "angel child" when she was young.

ANOTHER POME.
It's easy enough to be pensive. With a lass and a glass and a song,
But the man worth while is the one who will smile.
When he's got his wife along.

BETTER-BEDDING WEEK
At KEITH'S
We are strong advocates of BETTER BEDDING. Cheap mattresses or springs are oft-times the dearest in the end as they cause you to miss a good night's sleep and thus unfit you for your day's toil. It is an easy matter to cheapen a mattress and this is done continually by unreliable bedding manufacturers. We buy only from reliable houses and our strongest guarantee of satisfaction or money back goes with every piece of bedding we send out.

We carry the famous Derry Made Mattresses and add our endorsement to that of the manufacturers. They're better than good mattresses and you're sure to find one to fit your needs exactly. Step in and examine them. Samples of Derry Made Mattress Fillers are on display in our window.

AMERICAN NATIONAL LEAGUE BASEBALL CLUBS OPENED 1934 SEASON CAMPAIGN THIS P. M.

Seating Skies Greeted Teams as They Took Field—Managers Confident—Lineup of Each Team.

Thousands of bereaved officials will be called to the final obsequies over the unfortunate remains of many grandmothers or about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, simultaneously with the official opening of the major league baseball season.

The mortality among these aged individuals will be particularly noticeable in New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Boston, Washington, Detroit and Chicago but it is only a coincidence that the obsequies will play host to the inauguration of the 1934 season.

It seems to be thoroughly agreed, for reasons not altogether clear, that the New York Yankees will take walk in the wire this season much after the manner of their 1923 performance. Simultaneously, it is pointed out that the Indians, Athletics, Red Sox and White Sox have undergone vast improvement and that the Tigers are dangerous, as always.

These ideas have about as much in common as an orchid and a blackjack. If the league in general has been strengthened between seasons—and it is assumed that it has—then the Yankees will win fewer ball games in proportion to the improvement.

A hot tip to the Yankees would advise them to prepare for the sternest opposition they have experienced since 1922, when the Browns chased them right into the final day of the race.

It is noted that Lew Fulsa, Western boxer, is in our midst. Brother of the famous Lal Pulus, we presume.

T. R. Himsel hits and fits round the bases, raises 'em. Then he checks and steals to the job. On the night, he is only to be seen. That brings to mind T. R. Himsel.

Not since those obscure days when the gentleman in question was merely a left-hand pitcher has George R. Ruth been so kindly received as during his recent tour of the South in the interest of the New York Yankees and the gate receipts.

Our Mr. Ruth was met with favor everywhere and the conventional wreaths of wild razzberry, usually cast upon his earnest brow, were almost extinct. Thus encouraged, he hit exactly two home runs after leaving New Orleans and both came on the same afternoon.

It may be a bit premature to cast aspersions upon her, but we venture this much to wit: With the restrictions lifted on pitching and the fences at the Yankee Stadium where they are, Ruth will not seriously trouble his record of fifty-nine home runs as far as the bally old year of 1924 is concerned.

Bedtime Story: Once upon a time there was an empire who did not claim that he called them as he saw them. He was blind.

Metrical Correction: What is so rare as a day in June? Truly, no Summer day could be fairer. But we'll venture, forthwith, In the interest of truth, That a portentious steak is much rarer.

It is reported that Clem Johnson, negro heavyweight, has become a Baptist minister. Quite so. Clem was a diver in the first place.

FIVE SOLDIERS KILLED

Honolulu, April 15.—Five soldiers were killed when an army truck skidded and overturned today on the Schofield road, near Waialua, because of its inspired swerving last year.

THE SPORT CRUCIBLE

By David J. Walsh

Look Out, Above. It seems to be thoroughly agreed, for reasons not altogether clear, that the New York Yankees will take walk in the wire this season much after the manner of their 1923 performance.

These ideas have about as much in common as an orchid and a blackjack. If the league in general has been strengthened between seasons—and it is assumed that it has—then the Yankees will win fewer ball games in proportion to the improvement.

A hot tip to the Yankees would advise them to prepare for the sternest opposition they have experienced since 1922, when the Browns chased them right into the final day of the race.

It is noted that Lew Fulsa, Western boxer, is in our midst. Brother of the famous Lal Pulus, we presume.

T. R. Himsel hits and fits round the bases, raises 'em. Then he checks and steals to the job. On the night, he is only to be seen. That brings to mind T. R. Himsel.

Not since those obscure days when the gentleman in question was merely a left-hand pitcher has George R. Ruth been so kindly received as during his recent tour of the South in the interest of the New York Yankees and the gate receipts.

Our Mr. Ruth was met with favor everywhere and the conventional wreaths of wild razzberry, usually cast upon his earnest brow, were almost extinct. Thus encouraged, he hit exactly two home runs after leaving New Orleans and both came on the same afternoon.

It may be a bit premature to cast aspersions upon her, but we venture this much to wit: With the restrictions lifted on pitching and the fences at the Yankee Stadium where they are, Ruth will not seriously trouble his record of fifty-nine home runs as far as the bally old year of 1924 is concerned.

Bedtime Story: Once upon a time there was an empire who did not claim that he called them as he saw them. He was blind.

"QUEBO" GEORGETT vs "KID" LEWIS (at 140 lbs.) Georgett is Easy Winner Referee: Walter Vener; Judges: Pentland and Lewis Announcer: "Muf" McCarthy

Large Crowd. Some 200 or more fans attended the annual meeting of the boxing bouts held last evening at Cheney Hall by C. B. A. A. and were treated to four bouts of real fighting. Bristol set up four boxes to compete against a similar number from Cheney Brothers and every one of them put up a nice contest.

Manly Fighting Again Dominated. The judges ruled the second bout, Moske began to solve the boxing tactics of his opponent, "Jake" Moske managed to get inside during the first round and the infighting was terrific. The local fighter seemed to have a slight edge at the end of the first round.

Third Round. The third round was along the same line as the first two, being a close and hard fought affair. The infighting was exceptionally hard in this round and neither had seemed to have the best of the two minute session. The judges ruled in favor of Moske by a unanimous decision.

Fourth Round. The fourth round was a rather easy affair for Moske, who was able to get inside and land several heavy blows. As he landed for the end of the fourth and final round, he demonstrated his superiority. The judges awarded the bout to Moske.

Boxing Card Results. The first bout of the evening brought together "Young" Exelanto of Manchester and "Jumbo" Pratt of Bristol. The Bell City had taken the first round by a close margin and then the local boxer began to solve his opponent's style of boxing.

Second Round. The second round was a rather easy affair for Moske, who was able to get inside and land several heavy blows. As he landed for the end of the fourth and final round, he demonstrated his superiority.
