PLATFORM STILL UNSSETTLED

As a result of full committee conference last night, the task of drafting members today is to take alternative plans submitted yesterday and so combine them they will be acceptable to all extreme factions. Under this plan, the new plank would:

Denounce "K" by Name. Denounce the Klan by name, but so often the language as to cause a little trouble as possible. Enforce the league policies of Woodrow Wilson, but avoid pleading America's immediate entrance into the war as the best way to preserve peace. In this belief they are mindful of the spontaneous demonstration which was staged in the convention by Wilson and anti-Klanmen.

Spitting Eleven Ways. Fraternity deals with the drafting committee which is said to be split eleven ways—there being:

The swimming classes at the School Street Yac, which were held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings of this week have been very well attended. Although 159 girls between the fifth and eighth grades took advantage of these classes which are held under the direction of Miss Gladys Holland. DEMOCRATS AGREE ON LEAGUE; WILL DEADLOCKED OVER KLAN

Referendum to People in Settlement Reached On League of Nations Plank.

Efforts for Compromise on Klan Issue Falls Flat After All Night Session.

(By Robert J. Bender) National Square Garden, New York, June 26.—The democratic party today stood on the brink of perhaps the most fateful decision in its history—whether to make the Klan a direct issue of the coming campaign.

Throughout the night, behind closed doors members of the resolution committee debated the question until, from about midnight to dawn, they reached no decision at all.

The convention is scheduled to convene at 9:30 to hear the platform. But the committee has sent word to Chairman Walsh a report should be taken until 2 P. M. when, it is hoped, the committee will be ready.

Business of Deadlock. The Anti-Klan storm has now reached such proportions the time for balloting on presidential nominees is uncertain and can scarcely be expected before Monday if not Tuesday.

Such is the feeling among delegates and leaders both past and present that the Anti-Klan plank itself already is impaired and may well be shattered entirely before the fight is over.

PHOTOGRAPH OF MENTAL ATTITUDE

This is a photograph of mental attitude. Occasionally motion pictures reveal thoughts of actors. Rarely is a mental process caught in one photograph. Notice the attitude of the delegates assembled in the Democratic Convention Hall at New York, specially the women in the inset group. The picture, taken in one of those frequent moments of apathy that come in a spirited gathering, shows that little attention is being paid to the speaker.

Convention Opens. At 10:35 a. m. Chairman Walsh called the convention to order. At this time Tom Taggart, J. Bruce Kramer, Norman B. Mack, George Brennan and others, representing the different factions in the convention, were conferring on the platform.

Large numbers of delegates had not yet taken their seats. Chairman Walsh called on the Rev. John Roush Stratton, notable fundamentalist pastor of Calvary Baptist church, to deliver the invocation.

Mrs. Edith Bennett of Concord, N. H., was introduced to lead in end of which goes the grid lead and condenser and to the grid of the vacuum tube. This lead should be as short as possible.

One tube socket. The choice coil, C, is a single coil of 75 turns and should be placed at the other end of the set, to be as far away from the other coils as possible. Coils A and B should be at right angles for best reception.

For eliminating interference, the lamp cord, D, is placed in the antenna lead, one set of ends being attached to one of the switch points of the two-contact switch, and the other set of ends being attached to the other set of switch points.

In connecting the variable condensers, always join the rotor plates to the grounded part of the circuit. Use a UV201-A tube in this circuit as detector, and if desired, add two stages of audio amplification for greater volume and use of loud speaker.

MANCHESTER DAILY NEWS, SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1924. JOSEPH W. FLOOD, Publisher. 1000 Cotton Street, Near Oak, South Manchester, Conn.

MANCHESTER DAILY NEWS, SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1924. COSTLY CARELESSNESS. The teaching of woodcraft to thousands of American youngsters through such agencies as the Boy Scouts, the Forest Guides and the Campfire Girls holds out the hope that in a few years we shall hear of fewer such disasters as that reported from Colorado, where the carelessness of a camper in failing to extinguish his campfire has resulted in the devastation of a large part of the Arapahoe National Forest by flames.

It would be well if all persons who contemplate camping this summer would learn these rules; for it is the carelessness of campers in respect of fire which causes the destruction of a large part of the woodlands that are laid waste every year. The advice given to the Scouts is not technical; it is merely applied common sense.

Each of the joys of camping would be missing if there were no good fire around which to gather in the evening, not so much for warmth as for the cheerfulness and picturesque interest of it. It is the ideal place for the telling of stories. There is much satisfaction in a wood fire in the open for cooking purposes, also. It hardly seems like camping if the portable stoves using oil or oil derivatives are used.

The camping, then, is not to be dispensed with. All that is needed is that the campers take care to prevent the flames from spreading. The Boy Scouts are taught never to build a fire near inflammable trees such as pines. They are instructed to build a circle of stones around the fire, or to dig up the earth and wet a space around it. They are advised always to have pails of water near at hand and to prevent its rekindling after it is apparently out, to pour water over it and soak the earth for two or three feet around it. It is suggested that fires should not be built against large or hollow logs, where it is difficult to extinguish them, and that a fire should never be regarded as out until the last spark has been extinguished, as often a log or snag will smolder unnoticed after the flames have apparently been conquered, only to break out afresh with a rising wind. The fire should not be larger than is necessary, and in case a gale is blowing it should be dispensed with altogether as too difficult to control.

None of these suggestions is unreasonable; none calls for a great deal of work, nor entails even considerable amount of inconvenience. If every camper complied with them, saving of life and property would be effected.

ARE WE LOSING THE HOME? Much has been said and tongue and pen on the subject of home life in America. There are volumes of printed matter setting forth the fact that today the home is not doing either for children or grownups the thing for which it was designed—the providing of opportunities for a wholesome family life. And in these volumes there probably may be found some suggestions on how it is possible to make the modern home yield these opportunities.

But unless we address ourselves actively to the task of putting into practice our voluminous preaching on this subject we shall not advance greatly toward a solution of the problem. It would be futile to regard this thing lightly and to hold that it will remedy itself. No permanently wholesome life either in the community or for the nation can be built on a substantial basis unless home life and home training play a great part in this process. The situation is not to be taken lightly. Now will it remedy itself in the course of time, if as this educator maintains, we are going in a direction away from it.

The obvious conclusion is that if we cherish ideals that make for desirable manhood and womanhood and for a more efficient citizenship, we can not afford to lose sight of the fact that these ideals are best maintained in the home. Other institutions may help in this process; but they can only help, they can not supplant the home. It may be that the writing of many books on this subject and the delivering of many lectures will help us to realize this; and to that end they serve a good purpose.

One of the most important matters before this session of Congress is the relief of the farmers. Many farmers, especially the Northwest wheat farmers, are losing their farms for debt.

The McNary-Haugen Bill is intended to help the farmers. It would create a corporation that would have $200,000,000 of money, and power to borrow up to $1,000,000,000. The object of it is to keep the price up of wheat, corn, flour, cattle and meat products by selling them abroad.

INSIST ON A BANK

You don't deposit your money with individuals. You don't ask them to look up your securities for safe keeping. You insist on a bank.

For the same and for greater reasons you should insist on a bank as executor of your estate, because that means safeguarding every cent of your money and caring for every item of your property.

To safeguard your will, your estate and your family, insist on this bank as executor and trustee.
