IMPORTANCE OF PERFECT VISION

A physician connected with one of the greatest surgical dants in the land says that if a child does not see with the physical eye the mental eye can never believe correctly. If the vision is blurred the impression which the child gets' is blurred. This is putting the matter plainly and in lan-paresis, ruage which all can comprehend. The remark was made in connection with a plea for a whole child, one with correct age. vision, with a body as free from defects as it is possible for and if anything comes up let George do it, It is recognized that the ancient Greek ideal may not be attained in completeness, but nothing should be left to chance. Many slight defects can be corrected. If they are disregarded they may become permanent handicaps. To in- Get the banana peddler's ideas, sure the discovery of conditions which may need correction annual examinations are recommended. This practice has become somewhat common for adults, but extending it to children would obviate the chance of them needing frequent examination so badly when they become adults.

It may be said that this is in the business interest of doctors. When one is ill the first thing one does is to call a down. doctor. f it is a serious illness the bill will be large. The best way to make bills for medical service small is to keep well, and if by a periodical examination one can keep well one will be able to escape giving doctors much money.

A sound body for the child is of greater importance than a sound body in one who has lived a goodly part of the life one may reasonably expect. If the child starts with a handicap and it is not removed it will carry it all its days. Its usefulness will be lessened by it. If the next generation is made up of men and women of good physique the start will needs be made when they are children. Thus the doctor who pleads for the whole child is looking to the kind of future citizens this land will have.
