INDEPENDENCE DAY

Tomorrow is the Fourth, holiday of holidays. It will be a day of shout and play, of the pell-mell rush of restless energy, a day dedicated to joy and celebration.
It is well, we have a right to make merry on Independence Day. We have a right to cheer and to bombard the clouds with bomb and rocket. For it is the birth of a great nation we acclaim, its lengthening honorable life and the rosy prospect for its future.

It is not a day for soberness, though it will be well, indeed, if we bear in mind why it is we shout and what it is we herald. It is fitting, too, that we keep in thought the honor that is due the brave whose blood and courage made possible this day of days, this national natal day.

Independence Day gave us liberty, a chance to live our national life in our own way, freed from the dictates of any distant power. It did not give us license, and as we celebrate with consideration for the rights of our neighbors we are reminded that while we may have liberty in our joy there can be no license. License encroaches upon liberty, nullifies it.

Independence Day gave us a charter of individual manhood. The founding fathers might have set up a government that was administered from the top down. They chose to agree that every man should have a voice, and that no man's voice should be equal with that of any other.

Independence Day gave us opportunity, opportunity to live our individual lives as we would live them, opportunity to enter any field of endeavor, opportunity to develop, to grow better as we grew stronger, and—above all—opportunity to serve cheerfully and willingly, our fellowmen in the up-building of a great democracy.

The priceless heritage of our freedom is still inviolate. Our people have met every challenge from without and have repeatedly demonstrated their capacity to withstand every insidious assault from within. So great has been our security, so conscious our realization of power, that the only apparent menace on the horizon of today is that we may rest too easily, remain too much self-assured in the face of those influences which would honeycomb our institutions. Even as we celebrate our liberty, our individual responsibility and our opportunity, we must remember that vigilance is the price of their security.

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

A symbolic event took place the other day when the Queen of Belgium walked up to the balcony and dropped in her words.
It was noticed by most newspaper readers with a curious smile, and possibly mentioned over the coffee cups as a picturesque item, but really it was significant and worth turning over in the mind.

It marks the beginning of the old order. Kings and Queens and all the Lord's anointed are certainly not what they used to be.

Imagine Abdul the Damned or Louis the Magnificent waiting in line at the polls, or picture the Prussian Kaiser or the Russian Czar standing up to be counted!

Sometimes we grow peevish and inclined to think the old world is getting sour, that it's the twilight of the gods, the rich own the earth and their sons Tommy is entering upon a world game with the cards stacked against him.

Where are our liberties? we ask, and it's Oh for the good old merry days so light and gay!
Then a little thing like a Queen voicing brings us up with a jerk.

And there comes to mind what we have read:
Of grand signings of Bourbon dais deflowering a mother's child, flinging the horrid-riken parent purse of gold and riding away singing rapturously, rapturously.

Of noble lords of Charles Stuart's day ordering his bulles to roar the impertinent tradesman for daring to send in his bill.

Of Richard's summary command, "Off with his head" and then chorle, "So much for Buckingham!"

Of Le Roi Soleil, the magnificent old lecher who lugged through the barbaric splendors of Versailles, played with wintons at Trianon, and said, "The State? I am the State," neither did anybody deny him.

Of the imperious Hapsburgs riding down peasant children on the street and milking babies in the cafe while their escorts stood respectfully at attention.

Of Russian Grand Dukes gorging mouziks for daring to complain of sickness, and Cossacks shooting down the assembled people who had the temerity to present a petition.

Of slave drivers tying black men to whipping posts and selling their little one's in bondage.

Of all the, the dirty, covetous and unjust antics of worldly ascendants and crowned pretors.

Of all the uphug rasals upon thrones that, halced by superstition, exalted by tradition and protected by soldiers, have trampled their plutonous way through honest human

MANCHESTER DAILY NEWS, THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1924

And of how children were taught to honor them, how bishops consecrated them, how decent men accepted them as a matter of course and struggled for their favors.

How Goethe lived upon a noble's bounty like any lackey. Mozart cooled his heels like a milliner's maid in the antechamber of stammering duchesses that his divine genius might get a hearing.

Of how for long centuries, from generation to generation, mankind has been bilked, bunceod and browbeaten by the ancient delusion of hereditary nobility.

And then when we see Her Royal Highness voting, alongside the milkman's wife and the grocer's clerk.

We are forced to conclude that the world does move, and that in spite of the fact

That the banker lives in a fine house and we live in a walkup flat.

That Mary Pickford makes a thousand dollars or so a day while our Rachel works harder and only gets fifteen a week.

That Wall Street gentlemen count millions while we have difficulty in holding our jobs.

In fine, that some are still rich and dress in purple and fine linen, and fare sumptuously every day, while others must bustle mightily to pay the rent—

In spite of it all, and for all that and that, it's a better world than it was.

Children have a better chance and shed fewer tears. Young men and maidens have cleaner dreams and a finer romance.

It's no such disgrace and stigma as it used to be to be a workman.

That the winds of liberty blow free, from the Statute of Liberty to the Golden Gate.

And that altogether out of the blood and grime and dust and disease of the Past there is pushing up the white flower of Hope.

Anyhow, it's not so bad as it was. The Queen votes.

HOROSCOPE

Although Saturn in benefic aspect dominates this day, according to astrology, the planetary influences are uncertain. Neptune and Venus are adverse.

Under this rule labor conditions may be unsatisfactory. There is likely to be unrest and an inclination toward radical action.

Children born on this day probably will be industrious and persevering. Those subjects of Cancer should choose professions carefully and should beware of a tendency to seek political recognition.

Children born on the augury of a prosperous, successful year.

The morning hours are not favorable to domestic harmony, if the stars are wisely interpreted, all quarrels should be avoided.

Many religious enthusiasts believe the planetary influences are stars to be inimical to harmony.

to recognize the oneness of humanity and the true brotherhood of man.
The way is not a favorable to the aged who may suffer from extreme depression and even heart failure under this direction of the stars.

England is to have a summer of anxiety for the King and jeopardy for the Government, astrologers predict. A crisis of peculiar character is foreboded.

Scotland, Holland and other places under Cancer should prosper at this time, but Portugal will feel the ill effects of Mars and Uranus in sinister way.

His initial presence in legislative affairs slowly but surely and in a Congress not far in the future will be well represented, it is prophesied.

This may not be a pleasant task for the churches which are likely to be deserted, owing to the large worldly things.

All the dominating planetary influences at this time will tend toward restriction of material ambitions. They tend to quill the bourgeoisie.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a perplexing period in business, but they can profit by avoiding law and quarreling.

Children born on this day have the augury of many changes in their vocations, but they will have the qualifications for success. These subjects of Cancer are usually lucky in love.

It's no such disgrace and stigma as it used to be to be a workman.
