Properties near Midway Subdivision have already felt the influence of the rapid growth of this locality and have greatly increased in value. As an investment opportunity, plots in Midway Subdivision today offer the same unusual opportunities that presented themselves to far-seeing in-

Some of the league even have gone so far as to infer that the Saints were "afraid" and that if they come "out in the open" and play, there will be new Fifteen Olymppic crews are pract-

At this writing, the Red Men are "sitting pretty" in second place and a win for them and a the lead. The Shamrocks, who are STATE LEAGUE STANDING Saints would occupy their former camping grounds.

1. One sunsy say Uncle Wiggly saw a little mouse boy creeping along the road with a can. "What have you in that can, Jollie, my boy?" asked the rabbit. "Fish bait," squeaked Jollie. "I'm going fishing?" Uncle Wiggily laughed and said: "I'll go with you." So the bunny went fishing with Jollie. "Why have you the wheelbarrow?" asked Mr. Twistytail "To wheel my fish home," said Uncle Wiggily.

2. "Ha! Ha!" laughed the pig gentleman. "Do you expect to catch a wheelbarrow full of fish?" Uncle Wiggily said he might. "I'll come along and watch!" grunted Mr. Twistytail. When they reached the brook the rabbit gentleman began to fish. But Mr. Twistytail stood on his head in the wheelbarrow and sang, making Jollie laugh. "Please don't make so much noise. You'll scare the fish!" said Uncle Wiggily.

don't want me to sing I'll come and watch you fish!" He jumped out of the wheelbarrow and went to the edge of the brook. "Who will catch the first fish?" grunted the pig. "I think I have a bite?" whispered Jollie. Mr. Twistytail leaned over too far, to see, and, all of a sudden, he began slipping. "Look, Uncle Wiggily?" squeaked Jollie.

4. "Splash!" All of a sudden Mr. Twistytail fell into the water. "Wuff! Wuff!" he grunted. "Get me out, Uncle Wiggily! Get me out!" "My goodness!" cried the bunny, "you'll drive the fish a mile away!" But he was kind to the pig gentleman, and hooked him in the trousers. "Pull, Jollie!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "We'll make believe we have caught a whale!" Mr Twistytail cried: "Oh, save me!"

5. At last Mr. Twistytail, dripping wet, was pulled from the brook. "Thank you for saving me, Uncle Wiggily," he grunted. "That's all right," spoke the bunny. "Better lie down in the wheelbarrow and keep quiet for a while." So Mr. Twistytail went to sleep. All of a sudden, Jollie cried: "I've caught a fish!" and he pulled up a little one. "I've caught a whale!" shouted the rabbit. Out flapped a big fish!

6. All of a sudden the big fish slipped off the silver hook of Uncle Wiggily's line. "Flop!" and the fish happed right into Mr. Twistytail's face. "Oh, gug! Wug! Gurra! Gazinka!" grunted the pig as he suddenly awakened. "Oh, you poor fish!" grunted the pig. "You want to get back in the brook! I'll put you there!" Mr. Twistytail began wheeling the fish toward the water. "Stop! Stop!" cried the bunny.

7. The pig gentleman looked around as he kept on wheelbarrowing the fish toward the water. "What's the matter, Uncle Wiggily?" he grunted. "I caught that fish and want to take it home!" said the bunny. "I want to show it to Nurse Jane." Suddenly out popped the Bob Cat. "You come to my home!" he howled at the bunny. "I want to show you to my little Bob Cats!" The fish gasped: "Zhump!"

8. "Yes, you must come along to my den!" growled the Bob Cat as he caught hold of the rabbit's ears and pulled him. "Oh, won't somebody please do something!" squcaked Jollie Longtail. "Yes, I will!" gasped the fish. Suddenly, he flopped off the wheelbarrow and caught hold of the Bob Cat's trousers. "Hi, skippic!" howled the bad chap. "What are you doing?" The fish said: "You need a bath! Come on?"

9. The big fish that Uncle Wiggily had caught was strong as a whale, and when he pulled the Bob Cat that Bob Cat simply had to go whether or not he wanted to. "You don't mind if I jump back in the brook, do you, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the fish, "Oh, of course nd," said the kind bunny. "In we go!" gasped the fish, and into the water no flopped with the Bob Cat. That was the end of Uncle Wiggily's fishing.
