OFFICIAL PROGRAM

100 YEARS OF PROGRESS

1823 — — — 1923

One hundred years makes some remarkable changes in the life of a community. A trip that took weeks to make in 1823 requires but a few short hours now. And the latest achievement is crossing the continent in 26 hours by airline.

While Manchester celebrates its Centennial, "The Hartford Courant" extends its most cordial congratulations. This day marks 100 years of progress for Manchester and over five generations of advancement for "The Hartford Courant".

In 1823 "The Hartford Courant" was a weekly paper. But a very few years later, the daily was established. From a small paper, read chiefly by folks living in Hartford and vicinity, "The Hartford Courant" has grown to be Connecticut's mightiest newspaper. The daily edition has a circulation of 33,000 and the Sunday paper reaches 53,000.

With the special section devoted to Manchester's 100 years of progress, "The Hartford Sunday Courant" will print nearly 60,000 papers, the largest press run in the history of Connecticut newspapers.

"The Hartford Courant" is read by all the worth-while people. The finest writers of the day express their views and opinions through its columns, the sport section offers keen enjoyment to the lover of sports, the society pages tell of the activities of the smart set and there is always something of interest for everyone.

Prologue

A Scene in Manchester, England about 1550

1st Guard: Ho! How now? Who goes there!
2nd Guard: A beggar! I'll thrust him thro', that he should so greatly dare to block our way.
1st Guard: Dost not know, the law is, beggars die?
Beggar: Nay, sire, humbly I implore your pardon. Weary, I slept and did not know 'twas night, nor the lord's highway.
Knight: Sire, the fellow hath given us a pretty fright.
Earl: Wait! After all, it pleases me to pardon him. Quick! Go then, while yet you find me in gracious humor.
Beggar: My gratitude I can but express—if your highness will grant me audience—I dreamed—a vision came—
Earl: Speak on! My curiosity is brief—my temper shorter—
Beggar: A vision came to me, as I slept—of Manchester, its growth, and happiness, and prosperity. All things your land shall prove to be. It shall become great among cities. Its name shall be carried among the people of the earth. Nay, its name and its growth and its happiness and its prosperity shall be carried far across the waters—into a new land, where it shall live again, and still again, for all time. This, my vision, I humbly give to you!
Earl: You have spoken well. Your dream is pleasant to think upon. And now, begone!
Knight: What say you—a pretty vision?
Ay, fair it is—may it prove true!
All: May it prove true!
Earl: That our name may live forever!

EPISODE I.

The Podunk Indians occupied the valley in this section in early times.

Scene I.

Indians:	We, the children of our Fathers Gather now to sing our praises, Sing our praises to the sunrise, Told by all the birds of forest; Sing our praises to the sunset, Told by long and darker shadows; Sing and offer praise to Weena, To the glory of the sunset, Weena! Weena!	2nd Youth:	Sweet the call of thrush at evening, Calling from the trees at twilight; Sweet the flowers that thickly gather By the cool and mossy brookside; Sweet the ferns that grow in forests, Ferns we trample in our hunting. Sweeter still the breeze Kee-wah-noo, Soft and gentle wind of evening. Ke-wah-noo! Kee-wah-noo!
1st Youth:	Clear the sound of running water, Flowing thru the hills and valleys; Clear the dewdrops on the rushes, Sparkling in the morning sunshine; Clear the icicles in winter, Clinging to the roofs of wigwams. Still more clear there shines—Ossomah, Clear the shining star of evening	3rd Youth:	Strong the swiftly flowing waters Of the broad and mighty river; Strong the arrows of the skillful In the hunting grounds of autumn; Strong the rocks that rise above us, Hanging high upon the mountains. Stronger still our mighty freedom, Strong the spirit of our Freedom.
All:	Ossomah! Ossomah!	All:	Ne-ja! Ne-ja! Ne-ja!

Scene II.

The Council. Entrance of Warriors.

1st Councillor: You have lingered long beside the Big River and the white men gathered there.
Kawis: Many moons have passed, O, our Fathers, since the wedding feast of Attawanhood, son of Uncas, since the mighty Arramahmet gave to him his lands and daughter, gave them both to Attawanhood.
Mahmasett: Many moons, O, our Fathers, have shone down upon the lands of Attawanhood, on the hunting grounds of all the Podunks, on all our wigwams in the valley.
Sagaway: Soon the moon will shine upon the white man dwelling in the land about us.
Kawis: Land the mighty Arramahmet gave to Attawanhood, at the joyous wedding feast.
Mahmasett: All this land has Attawanhood sold to white men at the river.
Sagaway: This we learn, oh, our Fathers, within a moon since we have left you—on our journey thru the valley.
1st Councillor: Mighty are the white men—strong their numbers.
2nd Councillor: Mighty are our enemies, the Mohawks and the Pequots.
3rd Councillor: Let us welcome all the white men, that our numbers may be greater.
4th Councillor: Let us then make stronger our numbers, that we may dwell here forever, in the spirit of our Freedom.
All: Long as dawn shall bring the sunrise
 Long as evening follows sunset,
 With the shining star of evening
 Gleaming over land and water;
 Until then shall be no longer
 Sky above the land and water.
 Sing and offer praise to Ne-ja!
 Ne-ja! Ne-ja! Ne-ja!

Goodman Gilbert: As it has pleased a Divine Providence to guide us hither to this gentle valley, let us sing of His goodness and His love, which is our rock and our refuge forever:

"How sweet and awful is the place
With Christ within the doors;
While everlasting love displays
The choicest of her stores!

While all our hearts, and all our songs
Join to admire the feast,
Each of us cries, with thankful tongues,
Lord, why was I a guest?

'Twas the same love that spread the feast,
That sweetly drew us in;
Else we had still refused to taste,
And perished in our sin."

Goodman Gilbert: And now, may we implore our Heavenly Father to guide us in this new home we have come to make, and lead us in safety and in honor, for all time. Amen.

NACOMA'S SONG

Far ahead the trail is winding,
Leading us away,
To the distant forests, to the far-off mountains,
Fewer, weaker, there we wander.

Fast the white men thickly gather
Over all our lands!
Dwelling in our valley—all our happy valley,
Lost to us forever.

EPISODE III

The settlement at Five Miles was granted its petition to be made a separate society in 1773, and was called the Parish of Orford. This parish was patriotic in feeling from the beginning, and adopted resolutions at the time of the Revolution of a stirring nature.

Scene I

Assembly and Resolutions.

Richard Pitkin: Friends and neighbors, what think ye of the news of the Stamp Act, which has reached our Society today?
Timothy Cheney: We consider it both unjust and unfair.
All: Aye, unjust and unfair!
Pitkin: Are we free men of these colonies, or are we not?
All: We are!
Pitkin: As free men shall we submit to this injustice?
All: We shall not!
Pitkin: Is there anything we can do?
All: Aye! Aye! Aye!
Elisha Olcott: We can refuse English goods
Richard Keeney: I propose we fine anyone five shillings who agrees with their injustice!
All: Aye! Aye!
Wm. Buckland: I propose we extend to Boston town, expressions of our sympathy in their trial.
All: Aye!
Pitkin: Are you agreed to these actions spoken of?
All: We are! Aye! We agree.
Pitkin: We will then consider this a meeting upon the part of our society. Would that we could express to those authorities across the ocean the sentiments in which we all join, that:
All: We rebel against injustice! Our ancestors were led by courage to purchase the land and possess it! We are inheritors of their courage and of this land, and insist that we are free citizens of the United Colonies.

Scene II

The news of the Battle at Lexington reached Orford by way of East Hartford, and the Society soon joined in relief, with that town.

Horseman: Hear ye! Hear ye! Lexington has been fired upon by the British!
Hear ye! Lexington has been fired upon by the British. Call your men of Orford together and meet us at your earliest moment at Phelps' tavern near the river! No time to be lost. Hear ye! The British are at Lexington!

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

seems a long time—but do you realize that several houses in Manchester are now standing and are occupied that were built 100 years ago or more. Do you know that these houses and the land under them are worth a much larger sum than they cost. This fact alone is positive proof that Manchester Real Estate is one of the safest investments.

We have not been in business 100 years but we are starting to round out 10 years of successful selling of Mother Earth with and without a place on it for man to shelter his family and himself in.

In addition to selling land and buildings on commission we are operating and developing several good sub-divisions. Building Lots on easy terms at—

Pleasant View.....Woodbridge and Mather Streets
Colonial Gardens.....Wetherell Street

EPISODE V

Scene I

The Last War.

Justice:

Clear rage the trumpet, War's martial sound,
Rousing the men across the sea.
Quick came their help, when they rallied round,
To fight where the need of their strength might be.

They came with drums and with marching feet;
Brave in their youth, with cheer and hope,
With eager hope as they marched along.
Ah, they fought—these men—these gallant youth!
And they fought with a courage we can't forget!
And a mighty throng are dead and still—
They are wounded—dying—BUT FIGHTING YET.

With faltering strength they look to us;
Look to the land so brave and great;
They're waiting—watching—for our men!
Will they come—will they come too late?

Hasten, men! Prove your country's pride
In the land that mighty deeds spring from!
Let these heroes shout from ev'ry side—
O, God be praised! The Americans Come!

Spirit of Manchester: I am the Spirit of Manchester! In my life there has been sacrifice, and sorrow for the struggles of humanity for freedom. Let me know sacrifice, and let me know sorrow, for I shall also know I am on the side of the oppressed. Gladly and freely, then I give my sons to you in the name of humanity.

O, wondrous story told
Of all the days of old
Thy builders knew;
Each step—grim dangers fought,
Each deed with patience wrought,
Each day some vision sought
To make more true.

Down all those days of old,
Gleaming like threads of gold,
Brave hope appears;
Long since, their hands are still,
High hearts, whose stories thrill;
May we their hopes fulfill,
Through future years.

The HISTORICAL EXHIBIT

At Recreation Building All Week

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday (October 1, 2, 3 and 4) 2 P. M. until 10 P. M.
Friday, October 5 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.
Saturday, October 6 9 A. M. until 6 P. M.
Sunday, October 7 2 P. M. until 10 P. M.

The Historical Exhibit covers nearly the entire main floor of the Recreation Building.

In the Auditorium there has been assembled a very interesting collection of old furniture dating back to the Pilgrim Century, consisting of high boys, low boys, rare old chests, chairs of all kinds, including the rare mushroom type. The walls have been hung with hooked rugs, hand-woven quilts and embroideries. In the center of the room are some figures dressed in old-time costumes.

Other costumes will be found in the Lobby, together with a collection of arms, machinery, and iron kitchen implements. Perhaps the most valuable pieces in the arms collection are some of the original Spencer rifles made by Chris Spencer, who was a Manchester man. These rifles were brought out during the Civil War when the Northern morale was at its lowest depth. One hundred thousand of these repeating rifles, the first of the kind ever made, were placed in the hands of the Northern soldiers, and unquestionably shortened the war by many months. In order to turn out a great many in a short time, the Cheney silk factories were pressed into service and contributed a number of rifles. One of these is exhibited.

In the Girls' Game Room will be shown a very interesting old hand loom and spinning wheel in operation. Here may be seen a rare and valuable collection of the glass and china of the American colonies. This will include glass bottles, etc., from the Pitkin Glass Factory.

In glass cases in the Lobby and Girls' Game Room are shown the original deed which set off Manchester from East Hartford in 1823; several deeds from King George to various ancestors of Manchester people; early newspapers, books and other documents of value.

In the little Reading Room, Guy Wiggins, the famous artist, will personally exhibit his recent paintings which, on leaving here, will go to some of the large art museums in the U. S. for special exhibitions. In this connection it is interesting to recall that the original Cheney brothers were not silk manufacturers at all, but artists and skilled artisans. On the walls are some of the original paintings of Seth Cheney, the painter, and in the furniture collection some of the original pieces made by Timothy Cheney.

THE CHENEY HOMESTEAD

The Cheney Homestead, where the original Cheney brothers were born, will be kept open to the public during the Centennial. The Homestead has been kept as nearly as possible as it was one hundred years ago, with the old furniture, and the old stone well in the kitchen.

The house itself is a quaint old building nestling among the trees so as to be hidden from the passersby on the present street. Formerly the street ran by the front door.

Visitors to the Cheney Homestead should go down Hartford Road west, and watch for the sign on the roadway leading to the house.

HOSPITAL AND FIRST AID

THE MANCHESTER MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

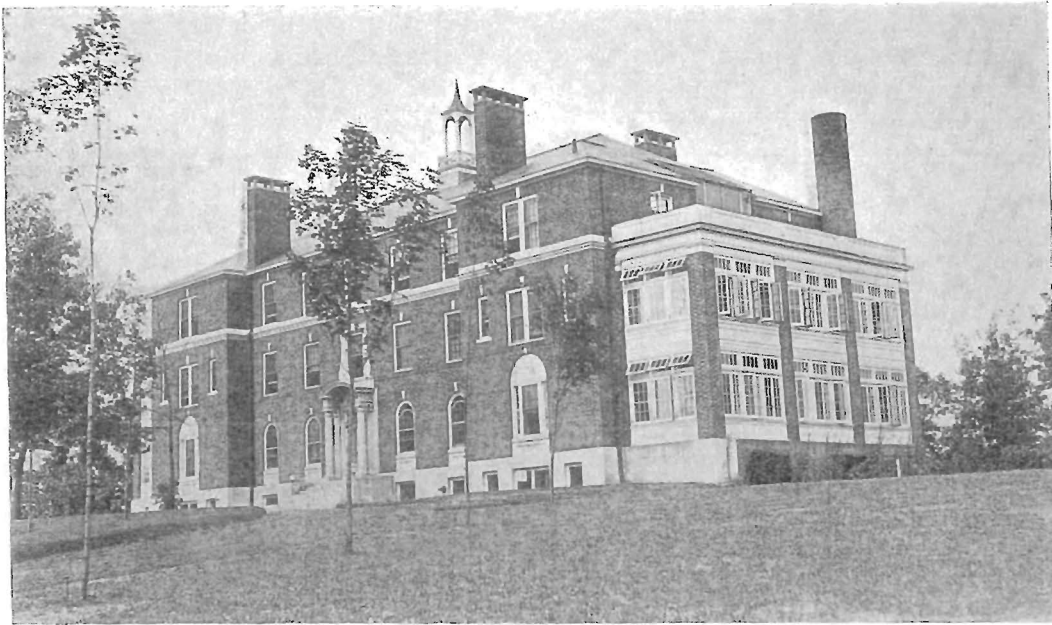

The Manchester Memorial Hospital serves the double purpose of ministering to the afflicted of the community and at the same time standing as a fitting memorial to the devoted service of all Manchester citizens who served their town and country in the World War. The idea of erecting a hospital as a memorial originated at a meeting of the Manchester War Bureau held at Hebron. C. Elmore Watkins made the suggestion, and it was received with general favor. Later the hospital movement was carried out successfully, resulting in the erection of the fine building and the complete organizing of the hospital force. Mr. Watkins was chosen chairman of the first board of hospital trustees and has served on the board ever since.

FIRST AID SECTION

There will be two emergency tents, one located at the center, the other one at the Centennial Grounds, fully equipped with cots, emergency material, two nurses and two physicians in constant attendance. Telephone connections and an ambulance fully equipped for any emergency in waiting. It should be distinctly understood that the hospital is prepared to handle any emergency case that may arise, whether it is taken there through the Medical Emergency Committee or otherwise.

ART EXHIBIT

PAINTINGS BY GUY WIGGIN

RECREATION BUILDING, SOUTH MANCHESTER

(See Page 44 for Hours)

The Centennial Committee on Exhibitions has been very fortunate in securing fifteen paintings by Guy Wiggin, of Lyme, for the Recreation Center during the week of the Centennial.

The subjects are most suitable, as Mr. Wiggin depicts Connecticut fields and woods and hills in late autumn coloring or blanketed in winter snow. Vine-covered stone walls wander beside walnut and oak trees, beyond which one glimpses hills basking in autumn haze—scenes that might be painted anywhere in Connecticut.

Mr. Wiggin was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1883, but makes his home, the year round, on a picturesque old farm at Lyme. He studied art with his father, Carleton Wiggin, at the National Academy. At the age of forty, he has already "arrived" and is recognized as America's foremost landscape painter among the younger men.

He was made an Associate of the National Academy in 1916, is a member of the Connecticut Academy, the Lotus Club of New York, the National Arts Society, the Allied Artists of America, the Art Society of Lyme, and the Salmagundi Club of New York.

He has been awarded the following prizes and medals:

The Dunham prize, Connecticut Academy, 1916.

The Trumbull prize, 1916.

Paris bronze medal, Art Institute, Chicago, 1917.

Philadelphia Arts Club, 1917.

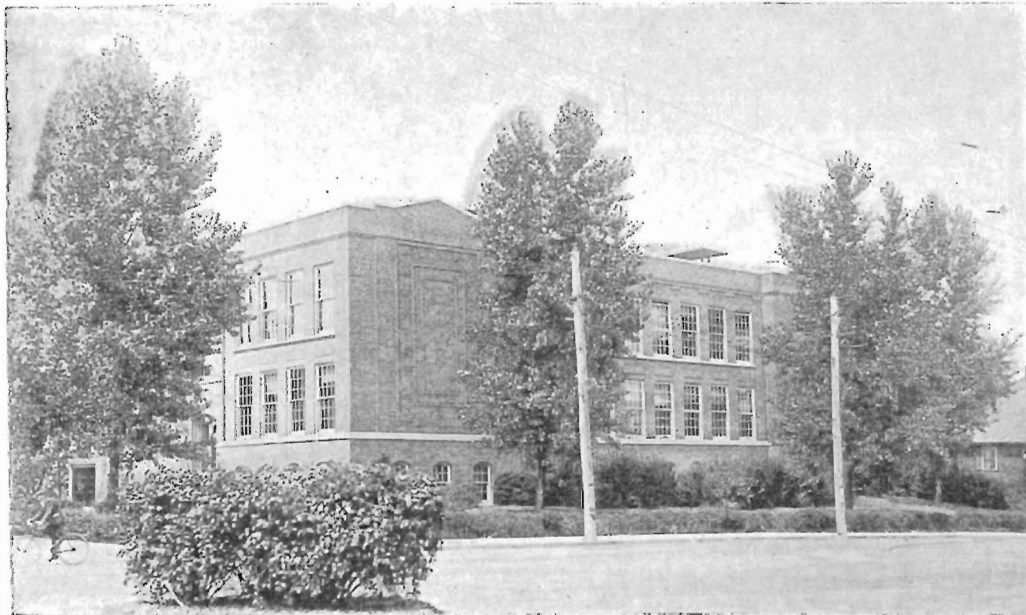

Flagg, Connecticut Academy, 1918.

Isidor, Salmagundi Club, 1919, and the much coveted J. Frances Murphy Memorial at the National Academy of Design, 1922.

Mr. Wiggin is represented at the following museums: The Metropolitan, National Gallery, Washington, D. C., Brooklyn Institute, Dallas Art Institute, Texas, Los Angeles Art Museum, and others.

Mr. Wiggin is not only lending the paintings, but will come to Manchester to assist in their arrangement.

From Manchester, the paintings go to Chicago, where they will be exhibited at the Chicago Art Institute.

"THE LAST OF THE MOHEGANS"

Among the many Indian tribes that lived in Connecticut, it may be said that the most interesting of all were the Mohegans. When the white men arrived in New England, they soon learned of the powerful tribe that lived near the Thames River and whom all other tribes feared. They were known as the Pequots, who, shortly before the coming of white settlers, emigrated from the Hudson River Valley and invaded the hunting grounds of the Algonquins in Connecticut.

They came under orders of the Iroquois, or "Six Nations," who had asked all tribes to join their League, which at that time consisted of five powerful nations. Their orders were to compel all to affiliate with their confederacy, and in case any tribe would refuse, to collect an annual tribute, or fine, of them, in which they practically succeeded. These Pequots were members of the League clan known as the "Wolf," and their chief was Tattoebum.

A few years previous to the first settlement in Connecticut, the chief died. Sassacus and Uncas were nominated as candidates, and both were equally liked by the members of the tribe, but Sassacus having a few more friends than his opponent, was elected chief. Uncas, dissatisfied and disappointed, left the tribe, and all his friends followed. They moved northward to what is still known as Mohegan. Here they built a stone fort, the ruins of which can still be seen on Mohegan Hill, and elected Uncas as their chief. "He grew proud and treacherous to the Pequot sachem," says the old chronicle, and the Pequot chief, angered, sent up his warriors and drove him out of his country. However, Uncas soon "humbled himself to the Pequot sachem and received permission to live in his own country again." But he was restless, ambitious, and very often dissatisfied. He was said to be of great size, very strong and brave, and had a good deal of influence among the Indians.

On the other hand, he had enemies, too; Miantonomo, the Narragansett sachem, he classed as one, but Sassacus, the Pequot sachem, he hated most bitterly. Uncas joined the white settlers under Captain John Mason in their war against the Pequots, most of whose warriors were killed. The few who escaped were scattered among other tribes, but most of them went to the Mohegans because they were related to them. In this way the tribe of the Mohegans grew larger and stronger and Uncas became an important chief.

In 1638 he had a quarrel with Miantonomo, which soon developed into open war. After both were called to Hartford twice by the Connecticut authorities in an attempt to settle the differences between them, it was agreed that Uncas might put Miantonomo to death. The sentence was duly executed.

In the year 1656, Uncas and his Mohegan warriors passed through what is now Manchester to fight the Podunks, with whom he had had several quarrels previously when it was claimed that the Mohegans encroached upon Podunk territory. This time, however, he came, not to settle the boundary lines, but insisted that the Podunks must give up Weaseapano, a Podunk whom he claimed had murdered a Sagamore living near Mattabesett (Middletown) and who the Podunks refused to give over. The Podunks were in their fort on the Hockanum River (East Hartford) when the Mohegans arrived, and when Uncas saw that the Podunks were equally as strong in number as his party, he was unwilling to hazard a battle, but, as we read in "Doctor Dwight's Travels," Uncas succeeded in getting the Podunk murderer.

A Mohegan crept across the meadows at night, set fire to a wigwam and purposely dropped a Mohawk arrow. The Podunks, upon discovering the Mohawk weapon, thought the Mohegans had called upon their ancient enemies and quickly gave over the culprit.

It is of singular interest to find that the sachem's third son later married the Podunk chief's daughter, Sauganosk, and that the chief gave all his land in Podunk (which included Manchester) to the wedded pair. This son of Uncas, whose Indian name was Attawanhood, but known among the early settlers as Joshua, became chief of the eastern Nehantics.

In 1672 Chief Joshua sold a tract of land five miles square to a committee appointed by the town of Hartford, and this tract, called the Five Miles, and later Oxford Parish, is now the town of Manchester.

Of this once powerful tribe there are but forty-three direct descendants living today, among which there are only two full-blooded Mohegans.

Those who are invited to participate in our centennial celebration are the seventh generation of Uncas, and are truly the "Last of the Mohegans."

Manchester's Newest and Best Home Site Development
On East Center Street Manchester Green

This property, in the possession of the Cone family for nearly 200 years, is now being sub-divided into high class residential plots which are offered by the owners on terms advantageous to the purchaser.

Located in the most desirable residential section of the town, on the trolley line and with school within six minutes' walk, it offers most desirable sites for home-builders.

The lots are large and are located on high, well drained ground, many of them requiring no grading. The new streets being cut through the property will be well graded, with concrete sidewalks.

For information regarding these plots inquire at the office on the property, East Center street, opposite Pitkin street.

THE BASEBALL GAME

Preceding the baseball game there will be special features at the grounds at McKee & Summer streets. The baseball committee is arranging with Troop B of Hartford for an exhibition in cavalry riding and horsemanship, which will be suggestive of the rodeo performances which delight the wild and wooly west. It is planned to stage this exhibition at 1:30. It will be accompanied by acrobatic feats.

PRELIMINARY EXHIBITS

[Preliminary Exhibits remain open from Monday, October 1, to Sunday, October 7, inclusive.]

Old Home Receptions.—Thousands of former residents here on "Back-to-Manchester" visit to The Old Home Town.

Old Home Lodge Nights.—Hundreds of out-of-town members, former residents, to meet with their brother-members in their respective fraternities.

School Reunions.—Classmates from out-of-town to meet their former associates in pre-arranged reunions here Centennial week.

Industrial Exhibit.—Comprehensive display of products of Manchester industries, including Cheney silks, Bon Ami cleansers, paper-making products, machine plant work, etc.

Educational Exhibit.—Remarkable display of work done by Manchester pupils; also photographs showing progress of education and school buildings during Manchester's life as a separate township. Art display also. A wonderful collection of pictures by Guy Wiggin, arranged by Miss Harriet D. Condon.

Historical Exhibit.—Noteworthy collection of antiques and treasures from the Revolutionary war days to the present time. Indian relics, furniture, spinning wheels, hand looms, and past-century curios.

Mercantile Exhibit.—Attractive presentation of how local concerns furnish the necessities of life for the community which they are called upon to serve.

Midway.—Ferris wheel, "Merry-Go-Round," Japanese games, concessions, games, and usual midway attractions.

Agricultural Exhibit.—What Manchester farms are yielding in fruits, vegetables, tobacco and other crops; also a demonstration of bee culture.

Midway open daily at Main Street Ball Grounds.—Encampment of thirty (30) Passamaquoddy Indians from their Reservation at Pleasant Point, Maine. In native costume, with Wigwams, Tents and Canoes. Here the entire week.

NOTE.—These exhibits will be so comprehensive and of so much importance that they will remain open the full week. Manchester people are urged to have their friends from a distance come early enough in the week to see them to advantage before the large crowds of the celebration assemble.

Manchester's Oldest Pharmacy

This, the oldest Pharmacy in Manchester, in continuous operation, heartily joins in the Centennial Celebration of the Founding of Manchester.

For Nearly Half a Century

Eighteen years of which the present owner has been identified with its management—we have faithfully served your Drug Needs.

When first this store was opened for business, Rutherford B. Hayes was President of the United States; Richard B. Hubbard was Governor of Connecticut; the scars of the Civil War were just healing; Bell had just perfected the Telephone; Edison was introducing the Electric Light in New York City; the Union Mills were busily turning out their famous Gingham Cloth; the Cheney Mills perfecting their today world famous silks; Doctors Jacques, Tinker, Whiton, Buckley, Griswold and Parker were attending you, in your sorrows or joys, as the occasion might be; the bicycle, automobile, the trolley car; flying machines and submarines, existed in the imagination only; the "Bed-time Story" now told by radio, was told by candle light.

But How the World Has Progressed

Recently we received an airplane delivery of Medical Supplies; our automobile delivery cares for your needs; the radio brings us nightly reports of the markets of the world, and the Babies of yester-year are the valued customers of today.

That we have kept pace with the progress of time, is evinced in the stock of our Modern Pharmacy—displaying, as it does, practically every known or advertised article of merchandise akin to Pharmacy of today—for such are the requirements of the patrons of this Modern Community.

We offer you careful, conscientious prescription work, correct merchandising of your Drug, Chemical, Kodak and Stationery needs.

A Setting in "The Cottage"

ONE of the attractive features that will interest Centennial guests is the great Watkins Brothers Store, voted by a recent country-wide poll amongst furniture manufacturers, retailers and traveling salesmen the finest small town furniture store in the United States.

This store invites you to inspect its four large floors of fine furniture, its suite of furnished rooms—"The Cottage"—its "Gift Shop", "Draperies Shop" and other interesting departments which have undergone extensive alterations for Centennial Week.
