Foreword

The memories of high school days are some of the pleasantest memories of a life-time. The ideals formed during those years are the ideals which will endure.

We have chosen for our book the Alumnus theme combined with Greek motifs, symbolical of our march through high school days and out into the world, holding fast the ideals of Greek simplicity, truth, and beauty.

"We'll follow the vision over the hills Into the vast, wide world, Led by the host of teachers dear Whose standards are ever unfurled."

ANCHORS UP

The ships are builded; now at last, The sails by our own hands made fast Through four young years, in courage rise, Alert to sail 'neath stranger skies.

The harbor's shelter ours no more Wherein white gulls of Youth's dreams soar, And, rising ever, dive and wheel. But now, alone, each one his keel Will turn to some far, hopeful shore.

- Fair winds go with us!-never night So dark that not some star its light May lend us, keeping still our way Through stormy night and brightest day.

CLASS SONG

We've reached the crest of one long hill, A hill that took four years to mount, Four years of knowledge, work, and fun, Four years of friendship,—friends who count.

With eyes alert and head held high We face a future vague and dim, With eager hopes and youthful zest We join a game both hard and grim.

A game with rules of sterner stuff, A game that shuns the one who shirks, A game whose goal is fame and power, A goal that's won by him who marks.

If we persist and do our best, And work according to the code, We're sure to reach that cherished goal Which lies beyond that rough, hard road.

(With Apologies to Bunyan)

Perchance, I had eaten too much mince pie that eve. Be that as it may, I did lay me down to sleep and dreamed strange dreams the while I slept.

Behold! I found myself in an unfamiliar land where people with anxious mien bustled about. Thereupon, I addressed a stranger with such words, "What is this land, and who are ye?"

In astonishment, he made reply, "Why, this is High School, and my companions and I are Freshmen. Tell me your name, I beg."

"I am Student."

Then did I preceive that these Freshmen were all journeying in the same direction.

"Whither goest thou?" I asked.

Again, the youth made reply, "We are traveling to a beautiful city called Education, but the way is steep and hard. However, after due consideration, I too did decide to make my way to that marvelous city. No sooner had I made my decision than a fairy called Learning flew up and with kindly words gave me some textbooks and a sword, Diligence, which I needs must carry.

Not long after, a fellow pupil came running to us in great fear and did bid us turn back, for, on the route, stood a great giant, Algebra, with his sword Equations. Though sore afraid I went forward and, with the aid of my sword, Diligence, o'erpowered the Giant who had waylaid many victims.

Lo! As a compensation for my fierce struggle, Freshman Hallowe'en Party, clad in gay colors, addressed me with merry words and led me to a large hall where games and dancing were carried on. Thereupon, I joined the gay groups and cast aside my text books heedlessly.

Mid-Years, with grim smile, soon bade me take up my books and continue my way carefully for fear of the demon, Flunk. Having successfully passed Mid-Years, who was reluctant to have me go, I heard a clatter of hoofs behind me and beheld in the distance a beautiful and welcome charger, Vacation. Later, I traveled many a mile with him, until Sophomore bade me dismount and follow him.

While making our way onward, we met a man of strange visage called Slang, who gladly accompanied us. However, at the approach of Good English, he turned and fled. Good English promptly arrested us for violating the law of correct speech and, on trial, we were found guilty by Noah Webster, the judge, and the jury, Mr. Noun, Mr. Pronoun and others. Hereupon we were sentenced to the prison, Shame.

I had no sooner completed my term of imprisonment than Leap Year Hop took my hand and joyously we went along the way. However, he soon left me, much to my sorrow, and, again I wasforced to travel alone until Roller Skate Fad volunteered to hasten me on my journey. Unwisely, I accepted his offer, but soon I found out that he was leading me away from the wonderful city of Education.

Vacation then o'er took me, and we traveled together again until we neared a goodly band of people called Juniors, who asked me to join them saying, "We are bound for the city, Education."

Straightway, we did go down into a deep, dismal Valley of Chemistry. There we were forced to do battle with a tribe of warlike creatures called Experiments. Many of our company fell by the wayside, but those of us who survived the encounter did go on until we met Class Rings who, in his sparkling way, soothed our weary minds.

Soon, I heard joyful shouts from my companions who, I perceived, were welcoming into their midst, Junior Prom, a most likeable fellow who led us on gaily, though at considerable expense.

a connection of the second

Then, joyful sight, again there appeared Vacation, who carried me to the deep sea, where a ship was at anchor.

"Ho, there!" said the crew. We are Seniors and will take you to the fair city you seek."

So I boarded the ship, but soon I did perceive that the sea was also strewn with dangers. We had gone but a short way when a black flag was sighted.

"Pirates! The Physics!" should the sailer who straightwy prepared to do battle with the enemy, whose ammunition was molecules, atoms and electrons. After a severe struggle, we conquered and were greatly cheered by seeing the ships, Carnival and Senior Class Party ahead.

When almost in sight of Education, we perceived a majestic ship skimming over the waters. It was none other than the Washington Trip which, leading the way, revealed to us the most beautiful sights we had yet observed and gladdened our hearts.

A fair wind then blew us toward our destination. There, before us on a hill stood the beautiful city of Education with its golden streets and walls set with gems.

I left the ship quickly in my eagerness and started to ascend the hill. A man clad in wondrous raiment met me and extended a parchment tied with snow white ribbon. He said, "Student, you have faithfully sought Education. Therefore, I gladly give you this diploma which will open the gates of the beautiful city ahead."

I did speedily climb to the gates; behold, they opened and I went in amid acclamation.

So I awoke in the morning light and found that a tree near my window had burst into blossoms the while I dreamed my wondrous dream.

Lovina Foote, '30

DREAMERS

"Blessed is he who carries within himself a god, an ideal, and who obeys it."

These words, spoken by President Hibben of Princeton University, form one of the fundamental precepts for success in life. In fact, without an ideal, a vision, without a dream of your goal, success is impossible.

The twentieth century will go down in the annals of history as an era of commercialism, of specialization and standardization, and, above all, as an era of speed. Consequently, is it not apparently a marked inconsistency to state that the world is full of dreamers—that really the only people in the world who are actually and truly successful are the men and the women who dream? In the mad rush and whirl of life today it would seem that, were you foolish enough to spend even a few minutes in dreaming, you would soon be left at the bottom of the golden ladder, the top of which each of us is hoping to reach. However, dreaming is not foolishness; it is wisdom.

What one of our beneficial and precious and now absolutely essential possessions was not bestowed upon us by a dreamer—a man who was probably mocked and scorned for his foolish fancies? Day-dreams. We all have them, but they are elusive and often slip away from us. One young man day-dreamed that the world was round, or the history of our country might have been vastly altered. Another dreamed of communication by wire, and the world was given the telephone. Day-dreams brought us great inventions, important scientific developments, invaluable discoveries in relation to medicine and disease. In fact, the entire progress of civilization can be entered to the credit of the men who dreamed a dream and had the courage to set about to make that dream come true.

Names which are household words to us—Franklin, Edison, Lindbergh, among others—are the names of men of vision. Knowing the stories of these men, we honor and esteem them; yet, because they are so great, we feel that they are remote from us, that our work can never run parallel with theirs. Very few of us dare to aspire to such great achievements. Perhaps, if we consider the work of men and women of today who are engaged in work such as we are doing or may do, we, too, may feel encouraged to form an ideal and hold it before us constantly.

About ten years ago a young man of twenty-seven had two hundred dollars and an idea—an idea which only a young man would have cherished. He knew a man who dealt in real estate, and he persuaded his friend to let him buy two acres of land side by side for one hundred dollars each. Then he set about to interest other people in his plan. His dream was so firmly fixed in his own mind that he made other people believe in it. Five years—just five years—after he borrowed money to build his first structure, he was paying $850,000 for an office building site in Brooklyn. Today in New York, standing to his credit, are many buildings, including the Lincoln Hotel, and the magnificent Roxy's Theatre, and all this Irwin S. Chanin accomplished in but a decade of belief in himself and his vision.

ŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŮŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨŨ

Many boys-and girls, too-think of becoming lawyers. When William Glen Marvin was clerking in a Davton, Ohio shoe store, working his way through school, he wrote on a slip of paper, "I am going to be a lawyer. I will go to New York, made a pile of money, and then go to California and live like a gentleman." He worked his way through college as a telegraph night operator, and later, in order to pursue his law studies he taught at night. After service as an aviator in the war, he entered a bank to "learn big business from the inside." He branched out for himself, and at the age of thirty-two he had founded the largest international law firm of its kind in the country and had saved up his fortune. His choice was a difficult one. Should he follow his boyhood contract or keep on gaining riches? He chose to do what few people could do. He cried. "Enough." In the prime of his life he is a successful, retired business man, all because he clung to the theory that to get anywhere you must keep your ultimate objective in view.

Henry Ford has said, "You can look ahead into the future as far as you can look back into the past." That includes everyone—old and young—for no matter what our age or status in life at present, we can always forget the failures of the past and accomplish what we want to accomplish, if we just form an ideal and keep on dreaming.

REAL VALUES

"A man passes for that he is worth."

Emerson has here stated the standard by which man is everywhere and at all times judged. The worth of a man depends on what he is, not what he seems to be. Throughout his life his every word and action is being judged. He is unknowingly taking the test given by his fellowmen. Thoughts and deeds he had thought long hidden are revealed by his inner self. He may make brave pretenses and bold boastings, but false values never ring true; only true values can last. Today he may be the envied hero in a score of brilliant achievements, the products of his fruitful imagination, but tomorrow, divested of this false glory, he remains a pitiable object in the minds of his fellowmen. The old, famiilar saying still holds true. "You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." What he is shows as clearly in his features as if it were written there.

To be worth something does not mean financial worth, nor does it mean that one must achieve great fame or distinction. Fine, noble qualities are as often found among the lower ranks of life as the higher ranks. A man is worth something if he does his best, working for general as well as personal betterment without injury to anyone else. The worthy citizen of a town or city is a valuable resident of his community. Such a man has the welfare, interests, and improvement of the town at heart. He keeps a vigilant eye on public and municipal affairs, forms intelligent opinions about them, and helps or opposes men according to their deserts. His rewards for such public services are the respect and admiration of everyone. Any earnest citizen, once he realizes what citizenship means, can help to improve his city. Roosevelt has said that for even the smallest fine deed or action the world is so much the better; on the other hand, for every base deed we are just so much the poorer.

A stranger comes from a distant land to a new country. He gets a finer house, a finer car than his neighbors. He has airs and pretensions with which he hopes to impress these people. At first these impressions are successful, but eventually they are recognized as being merely surface values. The man has no true worth and all his natural talents and abilities are wasted on his efforts to be something he isn't. It is better to be of some little worth than of a great value which is only false.

Throughout the ages there have been many heroes who by their deeds have helped immeasurably the advancement of civilization. The influence which these men have had upon the races has been of as much value as their services. They have served as examples to which posterity might strive. With their achievements they have given others the desire to accomplish great things. The knowledge that something can and has been done by others inspires man. He feels in himself abilities long dormant and a force which seems to drive him on. With such shining examples before him he goes through life with a higher purpose, following footsteps which will not lead him astray.

Tonight we are graduating from Manchester High School, but we have still another test to pass—the test of life. Wherever we go, we are being marked and stamped for what we are and not what we may seem. Pretensions and boastings avail nothing. One must be true to himself to succeed.

> "'To thine own self be true?' May Conscience lead us through Whatever comes or goes Of future joys or woes; For does not Shakespeare say That as Night follows Day, In this we never can 'Be false to any man?'"

The Somanhis Staff of 1930 may review with pride its achievements. During the year, many of Somanhis's time-worn and out-of-date characteristics have been removed, making Somanhis a considerably more modern magazine. New features and more material have been added to each issue. The success of these changes was decisively proved when Somanhis was awarded second prize in a national contest for school publications, in a field of 700 competitors. Miss Avis Walsh, the new faculty advisor for Somanhis, has been largely responsible for many of the innovations, and, consequently, for the outstanding success of the magazine this year.

Under the able direction of Mr. Arland Jenkins, our new debating coach, the Manchester High School Debating Team enjoyed its most successful season. On March 8, 1930, Manchester won a unanimous victory over the highly-praised Choate Preparatory School of Wallingford. Maurice McKeever, Austin Johnson, and Carle Cubberly, upheld the Affirmative side of the question: "Resolved, that the United States intervention in the Caribbean is justified."

On March 19, 1930, six Manchester debaters won the first leg on the H. Wales Lines cup and were crowned the 1930 champions of the Triangular Debating League. The question was: "Resolved, that trial by jury should be abolished in the United States." The Manchester Affirmative Team, which defeated the Meriden Negative in Manchester, was composed of Margaret Quinn, Austin Johnson, and Charlotte Rubinow. The Manchester Negative, which defeated the Middletown Affirmative at Middletown, included Beatrice Laufer, John Lloyd, and Carle Cubberly.

In the final debate of the year, the Manchester Negative team, represented by Austin Johnson and Carle Cubberly, was defeated 2 to 1 in a very close debate with Wesleyan Freshmen on the same question that was debated at Choate.

SOCK AND BUSKIN

During the past year, the Sock and Buskin has been enjoying a happy season under the competent guidance of Miss Geraldine McGaughan.

This year started off with the initiation of new members into the club, Shortly afterwards, a business meeting was held to discuss plans for the coming year.

The school year of 1929-1930 witnessed the presentation of one major performance—"The Lucky Break", a three-act farce comedy by Zelda Sears, which was presented late in November at Cheney Hall. This production, with a cast composed almost entirely of novices, proved a tremendous success.

Members of Sock and Buskin and others gave another three-act play, "Tweedles," under the direction of Miss Helen Estes, for the benefit of group II of the Washington Trip Fund.

During the year, as is the usual custom, small plays have been presented in Assembly. The first of these was "The Killer", a gripping melodrama of the North West, enacted by Doris Muldoon, Ermano Garaventa, Austin Johnson, and Robert McComb. The next play produced was "The Wedding Present", in which Francis Sullivan, Elena Burr, and Sherwood Humphries took part.

In March many members of Sock and Buskin took advantage of the opportunity of seeing, at Parson's Theatre, America's foremost actor, Walter Hampden, in his remarkable portrayal of "Richelieu", in the Arthur Goodrich adaptation of the Bulwer-Lytton play by that name.

LEADERS' CLASS

Leaders' Class, under the direction of Miss A. Virginia Howard, the new girls' gym teacher, has had a very successful year. The twenty-five girls who constitute Leaders' Class are admitted by tests, both in writing rules and in apparatus work.

The girls this year have had a variety of things to do. They have had tap dancing, tumbling, basketball, hockey, baseball, speed work, track and acrobatics. This course has proved very interesting because of the many fields of athletics which were opened.

The girls who had a chance to teach gained a great deal of experience in coaching, refereeing basketball games, and, especially in leadership, which is a very important factor in every branch of life. The girls who were taught also gained much by having Leaders' Class girls instruct them, for they could then be divided into smaller groups and could enjoy more sports and more individual training.

The class meets once a week. At these meetings the girls are taught advanced gymnastics and the theory of dancing. They learn a great deal and profit considerably, both by working as a group and by teaching classes as an individual.

At the last April assembly, the class put on an exhibition of tap dancing, pyramid building, and other gymnastic work which proved extremely enjoyable and successful, largely because of the distinct novelty of the presentation.

GIRL RESERVES

The Girl Reserves' Club, newly organized this year under the supervision of Miss MacDonald, Miss Nuzum, and Miss Howard, has upheld the purpose of the organization, "To Find and Give the Best", in a number of ways. The girls, dressed in Japanese costumes, served tea and cakes and sold Oriental trinkets at an Oriental Tea and Bazaar which was held at the Rec. The revue, "Down Petticoat Lane", which the girls presented as an assembly program, gave them much fun in the preparation. Bowling on the Rec. alleys proved to be of interest to almost all of the girls. The supper-hike, at which the girls who have been reasonably regular in attendance and have otherwise lived up to the qualifications received their pins, and the over-night hike, as well as the various parties which the girls arranged, made a pleasant and complete program. BAND

Under the leadership of Mr. Harold Turkington, the band has concluded a very successful year. Last year many of the band members graduated and a call for new candidates was sent around, which succeeded in its purpose of inducing prospective band players to enter. The total number of members this year was thirty-one. A set of books, containing many new marches and selections, was purchased.

The band played at the majority of the athletic games. It took part in various parades, including the Memorial Day Parade and the General Motors' Parade. It has also furnished music for entertainments.

As a token of appreciation by the local Lions' Club, the band was sent to the State Contest held in Meriden, May 16. Although Manchester did not take first place, it made a very good showing for itself.

Through graduation, as in previous years, many of the members will be lost, and it is expected that other fellows who are interested in the band will join and help carry on the work next year.

The officers for the past year have been:

ORCHESTRA

The orchestra this year has a membership of 35 students. Of this number about 30 are active members. The various instruments include violins, pianos, saxophones, trumpets, trombones, and drums. The orchestra, under the excellent direction of Miss E. Marion Dorward, is making quite a name for itself.

Besides having played for every High School Assembly, the orchestra has appeared in numerous public concerts. These appearances include: the presentation of "Tweedles" by Washington Group II at High School Hall; "The Womanless Wedding", presented by the Men's League of the Center Congregational Church; the Evening School Graduation; the Triangular Debate; the presentation of "The Lucky Break", the annual Sock and Buskin play at Cheney Hall, and the Commencement exercises.

In early September the orchestra, after two rehearsals, journeyed to the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield and won second place in an orchestra contest. On May 24 the orchestra went to Pawtucket, R. I.

The following have been members of the orchestra for four years: Fred Edwards, Roy Johnson, Francis Sullivan, Winston Bendall, Norman Campbell, Olympia Martina.

COMBINED GLEE CLUBS

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

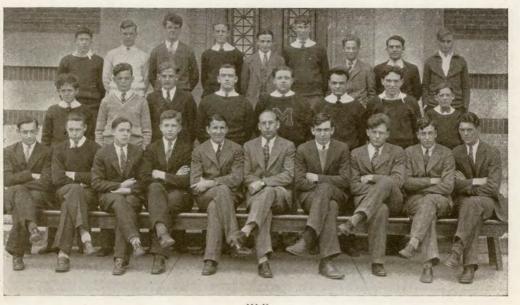

The C. C. I. L. Glee Club contest was held in East Hartford in April and the cup went to Middletown High. The club this year was not what it could have been. Consequently, following the contest, the club was disbanded and another, consisting of only picked members, started. The club has made a few public appearances this year.

A double quartet was organized in the middle of the school year and met with much success. Its personnel is as follows: Hewitt Wilson and Charles Pirie, first tenors; Carl Spears and Fred Edwards, second tenors; Russell Clough, Roger McCormack, and Harry Juul, first basses; Joseph Della Fera, and Herbert McKinney, second basses.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club was organized a bit differently this year. The girls were divided into seven groups, each having a leader whose duty it was to keep her particular group working harmoniously for the betterment of the club. This plan, through the aid of Miss Dorward, proved highly successful. Although the girls did not come out on top at the C. C. I. L. contest, they did splendid work and revealed the essential qualities of a first class Glee Club.

The officers for the year were: President, Mary Tierney; Group Leaders: Elizabeth Carlson, Mildred Hutchinson, Doris Turkington, Bella Silverstein, Beatrice Perrett, Clarissa Wood, and Esther Tack. The accompanists were Elizabeth Lithwinski and Esther Tack. The club has a membership of sixty-two members.

The Manchester Hi-Y Club, which is composed of twenty-seven members, has just completed its ninth successful year. Its purpose is: "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character." The Hi-Y platform stands for clean speech, clean sports, clean scholarship, and clean living.

The membership is non-sectarian and is limited to the three upper classes of the high school.

The one great thing that the Hi-Y Club does is to bring the fellows into closer relationship with each other. In so doing it teaches fair play and gives each person a sense of right and wrong. A club based on such principles as these is bound to be a success.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON

The red and white team, by far the most powerful this high school has ever had, finished the football season in a blaze of glory, winning five games, losing two, and tying one. The team starting with a few veterans developed into a smooth working unit. The success of the team was due largely to the leadership of Coach Tom Kelley and Captain Ted Lupien.

Almost an entire team will have to be built up for next season owing to the fact that many veterans will graduate in June.

M. H. S. SWIMMING POOL

Few schools enjoy greater facilities for swimming and gymnastics than Manchester High School. Our swimming pool answers a very definite need in the problem of training children for safe and healthful use of their leisure time. Confidence, an important factor in learning to swim, is more easily gained while we are young. Swimming is required once a week during the fall and spring terms. An achievement record of individual students is posted, and as different form strokes are passed the student records her progression on this chart. Due to the size of the swimming classes, life saving is offered as an extra curriculum activity.

The pool, of regulation size, twenty by sixty feet is inspected by both state and town officials. The water completely changes twice every twenty-four hours. Showers are required, and all persons entering the pool are inspected. Tank suits which are required are supplied and laundered by the school.

Our gymnasium, with standard equipment affords a splendid opportunity for marching tactics and Danish and natural gym work. The girls wear shorts with white middles and short colored socks:—red for the Seniors; blue for the Juniors; orange for the Sophomores; and green for the Freshmen.

Roses are red, Violets are blue, The joke that you miss Is the joke that's on you!

O. Haefs: I always say what I think. E. Hansen: I wondered why you were always so quiet.

The first date in history was about 4000 B. C. I wonder who had it?

The evil each class does lives after it.

W. George: The girl I marry must be one who can take a joke. W. Glenney: Thats the only kind you could ever get.

Notice: Students who attend gym classes are requested not to speak to the dumbbells, join the Indian clubs, or let the horses run away with them.

Oh—"Somanhis" is a funny thing: The School gets all the fame, The Printer gets all the money, And the Staff gets all the blame!

Thrift=

Nature's Own Scheme

IT is a part of Nature's plan for her creatures to save. Witness the dog bury the bone in order that he may not have to go hungry on the morrow! Watch the squirrel hide away acorns for the winter! Notice how the bees work industriously, storing away honey!

NATURE instilled the habit of thrift into these lesser creatures, we call it instinct.

BUT Nature endowed us with intelligence, hoping we would realize the need for thrift instead of being driven to it by instinct.

ARE you choosing to do the thing Nature requires the lower creatures to do? If not, you should begin saving now!

During the past ten years our graduates have demonstrated the thoroughness of their training by the excellence of their work. The success achieved by them has been a marked aid in establishing among business men a reputation for Bentley training and a preference for Bentley graduates. Some of the country's largest corporations send representatives to the school each year to select men from our senior class to develop in their organizations.

It is one thing to know accounting principles and quite another thing to apply them as a skilled technician. At this school great emphasis is placed on perfection of technic, thoroughness, and facility in performing accounting work.

Bentley graduates are employed as office managers, cost accountants, private auditors, statisticians, credit men, comptrollers, assistant treasurers. treasurers, branch managers, general managers, teachers of accounting, and public accountants. Those under twenty-five years of age who have had no practical experience start at a salary of about $1680 a year, and make an average advance of approximately $250 a year. A considerable number of graduates under thirty-six years of age are earning from $5,000 to $12,000 a year.

Employers who apply to us for graduates emphasize the importance of personality, ranking it second only to technical proficiency.

We are particularly interested in enrolling men of pleasing personal appearance—commonly referred to as the "clean-cut, up-and-coming" type. Unless such a man is serious-minded and is willing to work hard to acquire his professional training, Bentley's is no place for him.

Excellent living accommodations are available in our dormitories and fraternity houses. Catalog mailed on request.
